The Volunteer Regiment for Utah—New-York Probably Left Out—The President and Lecompton—Action of the House, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

Washington, Sunday, April 4.

Colonel Stevenson, of Kentucky, has assurances from the President that a regiment of volunteers will be accepted from that State, and a strong pressure is made in behalf of a regiment from Ohio—which, if only two are to be raised, will, of course, exclude New-York. General Quitman, however, intends urging the House to insist on four regiments, in which case Senator Pugh will make a strong effort to induce the Senate to recede from its amendments.

President Buchanan yesterday expressed great confidence that the Kansas bill will finally pass; and the Lecompton Democrats also profess confidence, based on the idea that the Douglas Democrats will permit a Committee of Conference to be had. The Opposition expect to carry a motion to adhere when the bill comes up—which would end the business. O.

[FROM THE REPORTER FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Sunday, April 4.

It has been ascertained from an authentic source, that there has been no acceptance, either conditional or unconditional, of volunteers for Utah or other service, under the bill now pending before Congress.

The current rumor that the President designs a reconstruction of the Cabinet is without foundation. The members composing it are known to be harmonious on the general policy of the Administration, and friendly in all their relations.

General Persifer F. Smith has been ordered to Utah, as well as General Harney. The chief command of the Utah Army will devolve on the former.

Tammany Hall in Eruption—Importance of the Emeute—Coalition between Mayor Wood, Governor Wise, Douglas and the Hard-Shells against the Administration—Governor Wise the Probable Champion of Emancipation—The Contest Impending in Virginia—Governor Wise, Eli Thayer, the Railroads and White Immigrants—Last Vote in the Senate on Lecompton—War between the Clans of Douglas and Buchanan—Defeat of the Army Bill.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

Washington, Saturday, April 3, 1858.

The new schism in Tammany Hall has a deeper significancy than the "skirmishes of kites and crows" which usually disturb the harmony of the party. Mayor Wood and his foresters have fled to their Medina in no temporary exile. Henceforth Mercer Hall will be classical ground—the head-quarters of a rebellion which is destined to exercise a great and perhaps fatal influence upon the fortunes of the Democratic Party. The disaffection of last Fall, which gave so much uneasiness to the faithful everywhere, was purely local, and impaired the strength of the party very little at all.

But the plot of which the ex-Mayor is the soul and centre has extensive ramifications. It is charged by the personal adherents of the Administration, that it was formed at Richmond early last Winter, in a conference between Mr. Wood and Gov. Wise, and had its origin in considerations partly personal and partly political. It is alleged by the Buchanan delegation in Congress from the City, that Mr. Collector Schell belongs to the league, that he has sought to "make up a State" for Custom-House appointments inimical to the Administration, and unfriendly to the renomination of Mr. Buchanan, and to the succession of Mr. Cobb or any other member of the present Government. This, they affirm, was the real cause of the rejection by the Secretary of the Treasury of Mr. Schell's thirty-two Inspector's in February last.

The motives of Mr. Wood are easily enough discerned. His power as a mere City politician departed last December. He sought to perpetuate it by transferring his talents for management to a broader field. Gov. Wise has nobler objects of action. He has or is about to separate from the regular Democratic organization upon a question which will agitate Virginia and all the Southern States for the next twenty years with an intensity approaching the violence of the seditions of ancient Rome. It is the Slavery question. Gov. Wise is preparing himself for the great controversy of emancipation. That is the real basis of his hostility to the imposition of Slavery upon Kansas under the Lecompton Constitution. He sees that Kansas can never become a market for the slaves of Virginia, while to force a Pro-Slavery Government upon her, would give additional strength to the anti-emancipation party in Virginia and at Washington.

This great social question has been precipitated upon Virginia by the same means as in Missouri. It is the fruit of the internal-improvement system and the immigration of whites of the middle class. Those two influences are so rapidly increasing the price of lands as to render them too valuable for the occupation of colored laborers. Governor Wise is statesman enough to perceive that these tendencies of the times cannot be resisted. The movement may be guided and the results tempered. He has the courage to govern his conduct by the requirements of the future, rather than the necessities of his present position. He, therefore, openly supports Eli Thayer's schemes of white colonization, and all the projects for canals and railroads which are running Virginia so heavily in debt, and may not improbably make her the greatest State of the Union, in population, wealth and political power.

By what political alchemy it has happened I cannot describe, but the immediate personal friends of the President, and the hangers-on of the Court, declare that Gov. Wise has sought to prepare himself against the coming storm by a coalition with the Hard-Shell faction of New-York, hitherto excessively Pro-Slavery, with Mr. Wood, and the Democracy of the Northwest under Mr. Douglas. The singularity of this combination is obvious in many respects, but particularly in this, that the three heads of the sub-divisions thus united for defence and aggression are recognized candidates for the Presidency, whose pretensions have been hitherto supposed altogether conflicting. This may explain why the living Hard-Shells have come to regard Mr. Dickenson as an indurated fossil, whose venerable yearnings for the White House ought not to be permitted to derange modern calculations. Mr. Schell, of course, has himself to take care of, and being in the actual enjoyment of the best office and highest honor he is likely to reach, may well content himself with discharging his duties to the Government.

The Lecompton bill passed the Senate yesterday without the Montgomery amendment, by nine majority. Mr. Pugh said his instructions did not cover the case of such an amendment, and he voted with the Lecomptonees. Mr. Sumner was again absent.

Of the seven absentees, two are dangerously ill; one has not been in Washington since his election, and another has been three months absent, from sickness. Mr. Henderson, of Texas, is far gone in consumption. Mr. Davis, of Mississippi, is said to be in danger of losing his eyesight. Mr. Bates, of Delaware, has not been heard of this Winter, nor is it known upon what side of this question he is. Mr. Reid, of North Carolina, left here for home about the first of January, and was unable to get further than Richmond. Mr. Sumner has never recovered from the injuries he received in the brutal assault upon him by Brooks and Keitt.

There is no doubt that Senator Douglass has finally left the Democratic Party. He speaks with great bitterness of the President, and considers his Administration responsible for the iniquitous proceedings in Kansas, resulting in the Lecompton Constitution. He says the first thing to be done is to break down an Administration that has shown itself false to Democratic principle, and which manifests incompetency in all its proceedings.

Upon his side, the President is equally energetic in condemning Senator Douglas. If the Senator should hesitate to go out, the President means to push him out of the party. To that end all his friends remaining in federal office in Illinois, will be turned out during the present month.

If the House vote on Monday to adhere—which is the agreement between the members of the league—that will be the end of the Kansas bill so far as the House is concerned. The Senate will then be reduced to the alternative of agreeing to the House amendment, or of rejecting the bill. The latter course will undoubtedly be taken. The present design is, as I wrote you some days ago, to reunite the Minnesota and Lecompton bills. It will be done on Monday or Tuesday, and the whole contest will be gone over again in the House.

The Administration sustained another defeat on a vital measure in the Senate yesterday. The Volunteer bill, which as it came from the House provided for five regiments—one for the Texas frontier, and two for general service—was cut down to three regiments and sent back to the House. Thence it may never emerge. A.

Situation of the Kansas Question—The English and French Alliance—Our Foreign Policy—Amoor River Explorations—Army Officers in Washington, &c.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

Washington, Saturday, April 3, 1858.

The position of parties here on the Lecompton question has been involved in some confusion by the passage of the so-called Crittenden amendment in the House, so that in fact it is even harder now to predict what will be done than it was a week ago, although it is not so hard to say what ought to be done. In voting for the Crittenden programme the Republicans have made large and important concessions to the conservative spirit of the country,—have repudiated the ultraism of Lane, and the other more violent spirits of their party, and have adopted a programme on which it is possible that the South itself should stand without dishonor. For the South contends that it does not care especially for the Lecompton Constitution per se, or even for the Slavery clause of it per se, but for the principle that Slavery may be established in a new State by the vote of the people thereof, and thereupon be admitted into the Union. This principle being admitted in the Crittenden programme, the dispute is narrowed down to the question whether the Lecompton Constitution is the act and deed of the people of Kansas, to ascertain which the united opposition propose to adopt the only feasible mode by which the fact can be ascertained, namely, its submission to their suffrages. If the Senate should pass this bill, and the President should sign it, and thereupon the people of Kansas should give a majority for the Lecompton Constitution, or adopt another Constitution establishing Slavery, the State would be admitted with it as a thing of course; and if the South has in fact been contending for a principle and not for a fraudulent advantage, it will have gained its point.

This is not merely the unsustained view of your correspondent, but it is one which was not overlooked by the Republican members when they determined on the course they have taken. They did not adopt it without due and even anxious consideration; but that they have adopted it, and are determined to adhere to it, in spite of more impracticable counsels, is a fact which argues their willingness to settle the Kansas question on a fair and reasonable basis. It affords them an excellent opportunity to deny that the Republican Party is national, and to proceed in the construction of a sectional party to fight the battle with the divided Democracy in every State of the Union.

Gov. Chase, of Ohio, has not been here at all, as reported, and though along with many others, he at first advised against the acceptance of the Crittenden programme, yet there is no evidence, now it has been finally determined on, that there will be any abandonment of it. Every movement in that programme, from the vote on Thursday to the last vote which will be taken on the bill, was projected and agreed upon at the start, and set down in such a manner that no misunderstanding can occur. The House will accordingly refuse to recede from its amendments, and deny a Committee of Conference, unless circumstances arise to render it desirable to the Opposition. If the Senate adhere to its own bill, therefore, the question must drop and Kansas must remain without the Union another year, at least.

Administration Senators, however, form expectations from the thirty-nine majority by which the House refused to reject the Kansas bill totally, and think that the Opposition alliance will crumble to pieces when it comes to the point that the Senate bill must pass or nothing. It is not for me to predict how well-founded is this expectation, but I believe that the Opposition have contemplated the contingency, and have not provided for any change of tactics in consequence of it. The idea that the South Americans will recede for this reason, is one of the stupid notions of Senator Bigler, and merely illustrates the general point of sagacity which has been manifested on his part in the management of the leading measure of the Administration, so far. I sincerely hope that he will not be put forward to elucidate the excellent foreign policy which I believe Mr. Buchanan has contrived, unless the President means to have it spoiled.

It is certainly the opinion in diplomatic circles here that the English and French alliance has been fatally damaged by recent events, and no less serious a result than actual war between the two countries is even predicted by persons well versed in the diplomacy of Europe, and especially of the English and French Courts. What a glorious opportunity for Mr. Buchanan to put into execution his cherished projects for the acquisition of Cuba, and to inaugurate with reference to the nations of the world generally the vigorous and high-toned policy which he is understood to have in contemplation! Let this policy not be lost in thought. Why wait for a settlement of Kansas matters? Why not give the public something else to talk and think about besides Kansas and the everlasting Slavery question?

Among the contemplated measures of foreign policy, our commercial interests will not be neglected. The abolition of the Sound Dues is likely to be followed by an effort of diplomacy with reference to the tolls imposed by Russia and some of the free cities upon the navigation of the Elbe.

A map of the country intersected by the Amoor River has been in preparation at the State Department, to accompany the report by Mr. P. McD. Collins, of his explorations of that region, with a view to commerce, and the interesting and important information which it contains. The report will shortly be called for by Congress, and will doubtless be printed by its order. The late Secretary of State, Mr. Marcy, took a good deal of interest in the undertaking of Mr. Collins, as he did in everything which offered to develop the commerce of this country.

An allusion made by a Senator, in his speech on the Army bill, to the number of army officers who lounge about Washington, disguised from observation in citizen's dress, and dreading to be ordered off on duty, has not effected a reformation of the abuse. They are still here in numbers, some of them for the purpose of interfering with civil matters, and asking legislation of Congress. O.

The Kansas Constitutional Convention—Its Organization and Adjournment to Leavworth.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

Lawrence, Thursday, March 25, 1858.

Everything has been lost sight of this week except the Delegate Constitutional Convention which assembled at Minneola, the town without buildings, on the 23d inst. About fifty of the members passed through our city, on their way to the capitol.

Under such circumstances as these, upwards of seventy members assembled in the afternoon of Tuesday, the 23d, and were called to order by W. Y. Roberts. Upon motion to elect a temporary Chairman, M. F. Conway received 37 votes, and A. Danforth 19 votes. S. F. Tappan was then elected temporary Secretary and G. F. Warren temporary Sergeant-at Arms. After the appointment of a Committee of Seven on Credentials, an informal ballot was taken for permanent Chairman, when Gen. J. H. Lane received 44 votes; H. J. Adams, 9 votes; Thos. Ewing, Jr., 5 votes; T. D. Thacher, 7 votes, and W. Y. Roberts 4 votes, whereupon Gen. Lane was declared elected by acclamation. They then proceeded to fill the board of permanent officers, as follows:

Samuel F. Tappan, Secretary; B. F. Hucchins, Assistant Secretary; G. F. Marren, Sergeant-at-Arms; R. J. Heinton, Reporter.

Mr. Sazaleer, of Doniphan, then moved the following:

Resolved, That this Convention now adjourn to meet at Topeka on Thursday, March 25, at 10 o'clock A. M.

Dr. Davis, of Leavenworth, moved to amend by inserting Leavenworth in place of Topeka.

Amendment lost, 57 to 11, after which the resolution was adopted.

During the evening session, or, more properly, night session, for the discussions were continued in some form, amidst the most intense excitement, until four o'clock in the morning, the motion to adjourn to Topeka was reconsidered, and, by a small majority, Leavenworth was substituted as the place of meeting.

To-day, the members of the Convention are moving towards Leavenworth, and they will organize again this evening. It is the general feeling to get through with their work as early as possible, by taking the Topeka Constitution as the basis of their action, and amend just as much as may seem advisable to a majority. These amendments are generally prepared in advance, and I see no necessity for continuing the session more than four or five days.

The weather is exceedingly fine. The farmers are planting and sowing—the trees and grass are growing green—emigration begins to move—but money is more scarce than ever. RANDOLPH.

Head Quarters of the Army,
New-York, March 29, 1858.

GENERAL ORDERS—No. 7.

I. Officers absent from the Department of New-Mexico, and whose leaves expire on or before the 1st of July, will report at Fort Leavenworth by the 15th of May next, to proceed, with an escort, to rejoin their regiments.

II. Recruits for the corps now in Utah will be organized, for the time being, into companies, battalions, and squadrons, at Fort Columbus and Carlisle Barracks, and will be sent off so as to arrive at Fort Leavenworth in time to take up their line of march from that post with as little delay there as possible.

Officers, therefore, belonging to these corps, instead of reporting at Fort Leavenworth on the 20th of April, proximo, as heretofore ordered, will repair, as soon as practicable, to Governor's Island and Carlisle Barracks—the infantry officers to the former, and the artillery, dragoons and cavalry officers to the latter—to go on duty with these recruits, and conduct them to their destination. If, however, any officer under orders heretofore given, shall have reported at Fort Leavenworth before the receipt hereof, this order will not apply in his case, and he will remain at that post, and join the recruits as they pass through.

III. Enlisted men, belonging to Companies under orders for Utah, whose terms of enlistment expire on or before the 1st of October next, and who shall not, on the receipt hereof, elect to reënlist in their present corps, will be transferred by the senior officer now at Fort Leavenworth, to take effect May 1, to the companies of the 2d Artillery, now in Kansas. See General Order No. 16, of 1854, from the War Department, paragraphs 2, 5, 6, 7 and 11.

By command of Brevet Lieutenant-General Scott.

MYSTERIOUS MURDERS.

Charles L. Samuels Believed to have been Murdered in Brooklyn—Continuation of the Coroner's Inquest—No Evidence against the Accused—Burial of the Deceased.

The mystery enveloping the death of Mr. Chas. L. Samuels, the young man who was found in the East River on Thursday afternoon last, fatally stabbed to the heart, and with a stone weighing some 60 pounds tied to his body, continues to deepen. It was at first reported and believed that the body was found at the foot of Beekman-street. The boatmen who discovered it stated that they found it at the foot of Beekman-street, and from this statement it was taken for granted that the accused had been murdered in New-York and then thrown from the dock near the spot where his body was reported to have been found. On Saturday, when brought before the Coroner, the boatmen told a different story. They then stated that they found the body of the murdered young man on the Brooklyn side of the river, about 18 or 20 feet from the dock, at a point about midway between Fulton and Catharine ferries. In consequence of a strong ebb-tide it would have been a difficult job to land the body at the Brooklyn shore, and so they towed it over to this City to the foot of Beekman-street. They gave as a reason for stating that they found the body on this side that they were afraid they would be brought to an account for not having taken it to Brooklyn, but being put upon oath, they felt bound to tell the whole truth in the matter.

This second statement of the two boatmen has given rise to the theory that the murder was committed in Brooklyn and not in New-York, as was at first supposed. A circumstance, which goes strongly to sustain this theory, is the fact that, at the foot of Washington-street, Brooklyn, which is about midway between the Fulton and Catharine Ferry landings, there is a large quantity of stone of the same kind as that found attached to the body of the deceased. Captain Weed, of the Second Ward, sent his officers to scour the shore on this side, and no such stone is to be found on the New-York shore.

The evidence thus far does not prove anything positively against either of the two prisoners arrested on suspicion of committing the murder. The fact that Curtis, at a late hour on Wednesday night, borrowed a piece of rope of the barkeeper at Pearsall's dining saloon, under Fulton Market, was at first considered evidence against him, but the barkeeper swore that the rope borrowed by the prisoner was a light piece of cotton cord, unlike the two pieces attached to the stone. Both prisoners still persist in denying that they ever saw the deceased while living. The Coroner has ordered that the docks in the vicinity of Beekman-street on this side, and Washington-street, on Brooklyn side, be carefully examined for the purpose of finding any traces of blood which may be upon them.

THE INQUEST.

The Coroner's investigation was resumed by Coroner Connery, at 11 o'clock Saturday morning, at the Second Ward Station-house. A large number of spectators and friends of the deceased were present. The following is the additional evidence:

Francis McPherson, sworn—I live at the Globe Hotel, in William-street; I had no acquaintance with the deceased; last evening I saw John Brady, the barkeeper in Pearsell's dining saloon, under Fulton Market; Mr. Brady told me that Curtis, one of the prisoners, borrowed a piece of rope of him on Wednesday evening; he said he cut him off a piece from some rope in the drawer; he showed me the remnant which was left, which was about a foot and a half in length; the pieces of rope with which the stone was fastened to the body of the deceased is very similar to the remnant; the size and color are about the same.

John Brady, sworn—I live at No. 7 Oak-street; I attend bar for Mr. Pearsall, Nos. 3 and 4 Fulton Market; the deceased has been in the saloon occasionally; he was there last week; I cannot fix any particular day or night; I am certain he was there on one evening during the week; no one was with him; he came in to light a cigar; I never saw him drink.

The remnant of rope from which the piece was cut, and which was given to the prisoner Curtis was here produced. It bore no similarity to either of the ropes found with the body of the deceased. The remnant was a piece of small twine, about one-quarter the size of the two ropes found with the deceased.

Witness resuming: It was between eleven and twelve o'clock Wednesday night that Curtis called for the rope; I gave him a piece about five feet long; when he came in he had no coat on; I did not notice that he was in the least excited by liquor or otherwise; he did not come back after borrowing the rope; I first heard of the murder on Thursday afternoon; I was told that a body had been found in the water foot of Beekman-street; it was the subject of conversation in the Market; no opinion was expressed as to who the murderers were; I afterwards heard that Curtis had been arrested.

By Jurors—Curtis came in quietly; he called for the rope and went immediately out as soon as I gave it to him; I have never seen Curtis in the company of the deceased; I have heard that an old lady who keeps on apple stand at Burling-Slip has said she saw the accused and Curtis together Wednesday evening; there was no other piece of rope in the drawer except the one from which I cut the piece I gave to Curtis.

Michael Knowles, sworn—I live at No. 76 Jackson-street; my business is grappling in the river; on Thursday afternoon I raised up the body of the deceased; I grappled it at the foot of Washington-street, Brooklyn; it was about twenty feet from the dock; the tide was going out; Cornelius Desmond was in the boat with me at the time; I was frightened and did not notice whether the pockets were turned inside out or not; we came over to Pier No. 20, and left the body tied to the boat; I went to the Coroners' office, and told them of my having found the body; I then went back and asked two mates if they would give me some rope to tie the body to the dock, but they refused; on their refusal, I went to the Fulton Ferry to get an officer; an officer went with me, and we then pulled up the body, and saw the stone fastened to it; this was the first time I saw the stone; we towed the body from the Brooklyn side; I fastened the body to the dock and went away, leaving the officer to look after it, as I could not wait any longer.

By Jurors—My business is grappling for iron; I came to New-York with the body, as I was better acquainted here, and as the tide was favorable for coming on this side.

Dr. Woodward, recalled—It is my opinion that the deceased was stabbed with an oyster knife; it would require a knife of the strength of an oyster knife to penetrate the sternum; no ordinary dagger or knife could have made the wound; witness examined the wound of the deceased and probed it with an oyster-knife; he gave it as his opinion that the stab was inflicted with an oyster-knife that had been considerably worn and was pretty sharp.

Wm. W. Davis, sworn—I reside at No. 276 Navy-street, Brooklyn; my occupation is that of a pilot; I did not know the accused; I have seen the dead body and recognized it as that of a person I saw at the Fulton Hotel in South-street last Wednesday afternoon; it was between five and six o'clock I saw him; no lady was with him; a number of captains and pilots were in the place; one of the party asked him to drink, which he refused, but he took a cigar; about ten o'clock in the evening I saw him near Fulton Ferry; I thought he was about going over the ferry; he was alone; I went on the ferry-boat, but did not see him; I sat in the gentlemen's cabin; he might have been on the boat and I not see him; I first heard of his being found drowned yesterday morning; I was told that he was last seen in the company of Curtis, who keeps an oyster-saloon near the Fulton Hotel; Mr. Billings stated this fact to me; he said he thought it very likely that Curtis had murdered him; he stated that he saw the deceased in company with a female in the evening after my seeing him at the Fulton Ferry; he gave me special reason for suspecting Curtis.

By a Juror—I can swear positively that the deceased and the young man I saw at the Fulton Hotel and Fulton Ferry are identical; Billings told me that he saw the deceased, Curtis, and a female standing together in front of the Fulton Hotel on Wednesday evening; the deceased was not inside the gate at Fulton Ferry, when I saw him, but was passing across the street towards the ferry gate; it was after this time that Billings saw the deceased and the woman and Curtis together; Billings told me of his suspicions that Curtis had murdered the deceased before Curtis was arrested.

The prisoner, Curtis, was confronted with the witness, who identified him as the person he saw on Wednesday evening in company with the deceased. Curtis was shown the deceased, and denied having ever seen him while alive.

Ellen Malone, sworn—I live at No. 476 Pearl-street, and am unmarried; I have seen the body of the deceased; to the best of my recollection I never saw him before; I was with Curtis last Wednesday evening, but no young man was in company with us; Curtis left his stand at a few minutes to twelve o'clock on that night; I went down in that neighborhood, expecting to go to Albany on a Canal boat, but the boat had gone; Curtis spoke to me as I passed his stand; I had seen him once, before last Summer; I have been living with a man as his wife; he left me about two years ago; when I saw Curtis he asked me to take a drink with him; we went up South-street to Fulton Market and thence through Front-street to Roosevelt-street; we went into a saloon and took two glasses of beer; I can't tell the precise place, but think it was near Cherry-street; after taking our drinks we went to Harmond's place, in Catherine-street, and remained there together all night; we got up about ten o'clock Thursday morning; we went up to Market-street; I got a drink somewhere; I was pretty drunk, having drank several times before getting up, and don't remember where we stopped to drink; we went straight to where I live in Pearl-street; Curtis staid with me till about five o'clock in the afternoon, when he went away.

Wm. Kennedy, sworn—My residence is at No. 49½ Prince-street; I never saw the deceased while living; I know Curtis, one of the prisoners; I saw him at his oyster-stand on Wednesday evening about 5 o'clock; I was not with Curtis at a later hour; Curtis' statement that he was talking to me at his oyster-stand between 10 and 11 o'clock is untrue.

Cornelius Desmond, sworn—I live at No. 76 Jackson street; on Thursday last I was in the company of Michael Knowles; we grappled up some old rope and iron on the Brooklyn side till about 1 o'clock, when we got something to eat; between 3 and 4 o'clock we grappled up the body of the deceased; we found the body opposite one of the Brooklyn docks, between the Fulton and Catharine ferry landings; the body was about eighteen feet from the dock; we brought the body over to Pier No. 20 on the New-York side; I did not notice his pockets; Knowles notified the Coroner.

The inquest was here adjourned till 10 o'clock Monday morning.

FUNERAL OF SAMUELS.

The funeral of Samuels took place at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, from his father's residence, No. 235 Adams-street, Brooklyn. The Rev. Dr. Farley conducted the religious exercises on the occasion, which consisted merely of prayer and brief exhortation. There were a great many persons present. The body was removed to Greenwood, and placed temporarily in a vault.

The Body Found in a Barrel—Supposed Murder.

Coroner Hills impanneled a Jury on Saturday at Bellevue Hospital, to hold an inquest upon the human body found packed in a barrel at the Hudson River Railroad dépôt, as reported in Saturday's Times. The body on examination proved to be that of a female, and presented a shocking appearance. The legs had been sawed off at the thighs, the abdomen cut open and the intestines taken out, the liver and heart only of the vital organs remaining. The mutilations of the corpse showed plainly that it was not a medical subject. In the barrel were found several articles of female apparel, a pair of white cotton-flannel drawers, a quilted white petticoat, and a chemise, with one sleeve torn off. There was also a large piece of barège, which, although it has been turned white by the chloride of lime placed inside the barrel, still retains traces of the original pattern. The garments indicate that the person who wore them must have been in good circumstances.

The face is small and the features are regular, hair brown, eyes blue, and cheek bones rather high. In the lower jaw there were only eight teeth, and those in the upper jaw were considerably decayed. The Coroner's Jury viewed the remains, and the inquest was then adjourned. Before it is proceeded with, it is hoped that something may be developed to elucidate the mystery. The barrel has been traced as far as Suspension Bridge, and telegrams have been sent to all the stations in Canada, asking for any information that will throw light on the supposed murder.

Murder and Highway Robbery.

About 10 o'clock on the night of the 23d of March last, a man named Barney Foy was attacked by two ruffians named John Behan and Michael Mahoney, on Twentieth-street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues, Brooklyn, and robbed of $50. The robbers, in accomplishing their purpose, knocked their victim down and beat and kicked him until he was insensible. He managed to get to his house in Seventeenth-street, near Ninth-avenue, during the night, and was confined to his bed for several days. As soon as he could get out, he discovered his assailants and caused them to be arrested and committed for examination. The examination was commenced on Friday last before Justice Blachley, and was adjourned till Thursday next. Yesterday morning Foy died suddenly, and Coroner Cozine will hold an inquest to-day. Dr. Geo Cochrane held a post mortem examination yesterday afternoon, when it was ascertained that the deceased died from injuries received at the time he was robbed. He had not been well since the robbery but most of the time could walk about. On Saturday night he attended a public meeting and returned home between 8 and 9 o'clock. He was alive at 6 o'clock yesterday morning and was playing with his children on a bed, when suddenly he straightened out and breathed his last without a struggle.

Behan and Mahoney, who caused Foy's death, are both notorious characters, and are well known to the Police. Behan, a short time ago, split a man's head open with a spade; last Summer he attacked a young man, walking with two ladies on Third-avenue, with a slung shot. For this offence Justice Blachley sentenced him to the Penitentiary for thirty days. He remained there less than one week. He has at various times attacked his father with deadly weapons. Some time last Summer he made a murderous attack upon a Greenwood car conductor. For these offences he has generally escaped punishment. Mahoney is equally well known to the Police.

Still Another Murder—Probably.

Coroner Snell will hold an inquest to-day on body of James Murphy, found in the water at the foot of Carrol-street, on Thursday last. The friends of the deceased are quite confident that he was murdered.

Suspicion of Foul Play.

Correspondence of the New York Times.

Jamaica, Sunday, April 4, 1858.

About 10 o'clock yesterday morning, one of the inmates of the Sea-Side House, (four miles west of the Rockaway Pavilion, fronting on Jamaica Bay,) discovered an object floating near the shore, resembling a corpse. Information was immediately given to Mr. J. M. Johnson, one of the proprietors of the house, who, upon examination, found it to be the body of a man. Mr. J. procured assistance and brought the body ashore and locked it in a store-house to await the action of the Coroner.

The deceased was apparently about 30 years of age. The body had, apparently, been in the water but a short time. There was a deep gash over the left eye, from which the blood oozed while being removed. The right eye appeared to be defective, as though blind.

As a Coroner was not to be had at a less distance than 20 miles, it was concluded that an inquest should be held by a justice; accordingly it was held to-day by Thos. Pearsall, Esq.

The pockets of the deceased were examined, and his name was ascertained to be Wm. P. Mackay.

Sea and Ship News.

Quarantine has been established for the season and arrangements have been made by the Health Officer to enforce the health laws rigidly. Since the first of April, all vessels arriving are subject to a visit of inspection. To assist the Health Officer, a police force has been detailed, which will be always on duty within the inclosure. The buoys have been placed in position, so that no one can be ignorant of the boundaries of quarantine. A large beacon light has been placed upon the quarantine dock, which will illuminate the anchorage ground, and lights are arranged at convenient distances to light the grounds.

Captain McEwen, of the bark Clara Windsor of this port, denies the statement that he was fired at by the English gun-boat Forward while his ensign was flying. He had no colors set, and was tacking ship at the time, which led to the belief that he was attempting to run away. One blank and two shotted guns were discharged, when he showed his colors, and an officer was sent on board, who apologized for the act.

The Russian steam corvette, which has just been completed by Wm. H. Webb, returned from her trial trip Saturday. The performance of the ship and her engines was satisfactory.

Obituary.

Ex-Governor John S. Peters, of Connecticut, died at Hebron on the 30th inst. He was a member of the Assembly as Senator or Representative for several years, and Lieutenant-Governor from 1827 to 1831, when he succeeded Gideon Tomlinson as Governor, holding the office two years.

Imposition upon Country Merchants—The Gift Lottery Business Outdone.

For some time past complaints have been made to the Mayor of an extensive swindle practiced upon country merchants by parties designating themselves "Oliphant, Bartlett & Co.," 208 Broadway, and representing themselves to be the proprietors of a West India Coffee manufactory. The matter was given in charge to Sergeant Birney. On inquiry it was discovered that a man named Bradley about a month ago applied to Messrs. Tappan & McKillop, Mercantile Agents, to send fifteen thousand circulars, signed "Oliphant, Bartlett & Co.," to merchants in all sections of the United States and Canadas. The specified number of circulars were sent. The circulars announced that the writers could furnish three different kinds of Coffee to country merchants, on terms enabling the latter to derive on the sale a net profit of over 50 per cent. Thousands of merchants at once sent their names, offering to become agents. Certificates of agency were forwarded to these merchants, and invoices of a sample of the goods. A request was sent with the invoice that the amount might be forwarded by check or bankable money, with a promise that on all future orders 8 months' time would be given. The money was solicited on the plea that it was necessary to enable the firm here to meet the heavy outlays of advertising and other expenses.

Owing to the small amount of the required remittances, merchants at once sent on the money. The samples of Coffee never reached their promised destination, however; the whole affair was a well-concocted and gigantic swindle.

On inquiring at the Post-Office it was ascertained that over one hundred letters arrived daily, addressed to the firm of "Oliphant, Bartlett & Co." By lying in wait the Sergeant on Thursday arrested a young man who called for the letters. The officer took him before the Mayor, where he gave his name as George Phelps. The young man stated that he had been in the employ of Bradley, who represented the whole firm and who was at the bottom of the whole swindle, for about three weeks. During this time the receipts daily had averaged fully $1,000—of which not the shadow of a return had been made to the victims. In default of $1,000 bail he was sent to the Tombs.

On Friday Sergeant Birney visited the head-quarters, No. 208 Broadway, and found that the office was at No. 6, a small room containing two chests, two chairs, and a bag with about three pounds of coffee. He waited several hours, but the proprietor failed to appear. A large number of merchants, just arrived, called, however, expressing a wish to become agents for the coffee. It is believed that Bradley has taken the alarm and fled. He is said to have been concerned in a similar swindle about seven years ago. The Mayor has ordered that all future letters addressed to "Bartlett & Co." shall be taken from the Post-Office and sent to Washington, to be re-mailed to the writers.

City Items.

Burton's old Chambers-street Theatre, which has been leased by the United States Government for fifteen years at a rent of $16,000 per annum, will be immediately fitted up for the use of the United States Courts and offices of the Government in this City. The property which has been leased includes three dwelling houses on Reade-street, in the rear of the theatre, and has a front of 75 feet, with a depth of 100 feet. The building will be divided into two stories, connected by iron staircases. The hall will be 10 feet wide. On the first floor will be the United States Marshal's and other offices, and on the second floor will be the rooms of the United States Circuit and United States District Courts, each 60 feet deep, lighted from above. The United States District-Attorney will have four rooms in the second story, and on the the same floor will be the Judges' private apartments, and petit jury rooms. $20,000 is the estimated cost of altering and refitting the buildings.

About 2 o'clock on Friday afternoon a large piece of a stump which some workmen on the Third-avenue Railroad were blasting was hurled with great force into the centre of the yard at the rear of the house occupied by Mr. H. L. Stuart, on Fifty-eighth-street, between Second and Third avenues. The servant girl had just left the spot where it struck. The blast was so heavy as to shake the entire block. Such carelessness is a little too common in the suburbs. It should be looked after by the police authorities.

About 12 o'clock Friday night a Spanish sailor pitched a woman into the street from the third story of a crib in Water-street, kept by a fellow named "Sandy Mulholland." She was taken to the Hospital, where her recovery was pronounced impossible. The sailor was subsequently badly beaten by the male inmates of the place, and was afterwards taken to the Fourth Ward Station-house.

The case of Flagg vs. Smith and Fitzpatrick, for alleged frauds in the Comptroller's Office, was again resumed on Saturday, before Recorder Barnard, in the Court-room of the General Sessions. Mr. John Graham continued his cross-examination of the Comptroller; but the testimony elicited did not present any new facts. Mr. Devlin will probably be examined to-day.

The fourth lecture of the course on "The East" was delivered before the Geographical Society and a large audience, by Captain W. F. Lynch, U. S. N., on Saturday evening. His subject was "The Dead Sea Expedition in connection with Syrian Exploration. The lecture was interesting and well-received. At its close a vote of thanks to Captain Lynch was passed.

The April Term of the Court of General Sessions commences to day before Recorder Barnard. The Calendar is a heavy one, including several cases of murder and manslaughter, and the proceedings of the term promises to be interesting. The Recorder, certainly, has his hands full of business.

The last prayer-meeting in Burton's Theatre, Chambers-street, was held on Saturday. The Rev. Henry Ward Beecher was the leader. The building was densely crowded. The United States Government takes possession of the building to-day.

The New-York Typographical Union No. 6, held a meeting on Saturday evening and elected George W. Smith and Lysander B. Young, Delegates to the National Typographical Convention, to be held at Chicago, May 9.

Progress of the Age—New-York Newspapers in the Country.

From the Rome (N. Y.) Daily Sentinel, April 2.

It is a matter of considerable interest as well as surprise, to notice the large increase in circulation of the New-York dailies within the past few years. A traveler cannot visit a city, village, town or hamlet in any of the Northern, Middle, Western or Eastern States, accessible to railroads, but that he hears the cry of the newsboy, "'Ere's the New-York 'Erald, Times and Tribune." Nearly every traveler on the cars, steamboat or stage-coach has a New-York daily in his hands or by his side. About every villager, as well as residents of cities, read a New-York daily. Those papers are, indeed, great "institutions," and we would not say one word to discourage the taking of a New-York daily, except so far as they interfere with and choke out of existence the country Press; and even then we would by all means strongly urge people to patronize both country and city dailies; no one can well get along without both—a country newspaper gives the local items and news of the county, and matters connected therewith—a city daily is a panorama of the passing world—a sketch of everyday life—a faithful daguerreotype of passing and important events in the commercial metropolis, the national capital, and in fact the whole world!

We well remember that, about seven years ago, a negro man, full of zeal, and with a considerable degree of intelligence for a black man, started the experiment of selling New-York dailies in this village; he was the pioneer in the movement; he received the papers outside the mail, about 8½ P. M. each day; that was the earliest he could get them. About 9 P. M. his voice could be heard in our streets, "here is the Times, Herald, Tribune, Courier and Enquirer and New-York Express;" he tried it for two or three weeks, and then gave up the job as a bad one; the people had not then become so habituated to the reading of New-York dailies, but that they could easily dispense with them. What a change relative to New-York dailies has taken place, in this place alone, since then, saying nothing about the cart-loads which go north on the Watertown and Rome Railroad, (not then completed,) besides to thousands of other places. There arrives in this village each day, outside of the mails, and which are sold by the two booksellers here, about 45 Daily Tribunes, about the same number of Heralds, and some EIGHTY-FIVE NEW-YORK TIMES—making about 180 of these three papers, saying nothing of the number of those papers coming through the mails, nor of other New-York dailies received here. And it frequently happens, that after the 180 dailies are sold there is a considerable demand for more.

If the demand for the New-York dailies has increased in other places, as it has in this, our readers can figure up as well as we can, how enormous must be the issue of those dailies.

And again, a few years ago New-York dailies were not received here until the next day after publication; now they arrive at 5 P. M. of the day, and in Summer at 3 P. M.! Do we not surely live in a progressive and wonderful age?

SUPERIOR COURT—Special Term Calendar—Nos. 1 to 20—demurrers.

Important Presentment by the Grand Jury.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT—April 3.

Before Judge Betts.

The Grand Jury came in this morning with the following indictments:

The United States vs. Walter Franklin.—An indictment against the chief mate of the ship A. Z., for an assault upon one of the crew with a belaying-pin and a pair of brass knuckles.

The United States vs. Charles Jack.—An indictment for a similar offence against the chief mate of the ship Jennie Foster, Jr.

The United States vs. William Ennis.—An indictment for cruel and unusual punishment, against the second mate of the ship John J. Boyd.

PRESENTMENT—TREATMENT OF WITNESSES.

The Grand Jury also brought in the following presentment, which was read and ordered to be filed, after which they were discharged for the term:

In accordance with a request emanating from the Court, this Grand Jury have visited the prisons in this City in which witnesses in cases before the United States Courts are confined in default of bail, and they have also examined witnesses in respect to the accommodations and fare provided in these prisons.

At the Tombs, where several witnesses are now confined, one large room is appropriated exclusively to their use, serving both as a sitting and lodging-room. It is properly ventilated, but is wholly wanting in suitable furniture. The beds are straw, covered only with ticking, and the only bed-clothes furnished are two blankets to each bed, no pillows or sheets being provided. The beds are in a very filthy condition, and witnesses complain that they are much annoyed by vermin of various kinds. Witnesses have free access to the prison-yard, and can thus take exercise in the open air. No complaint is made in regard to the food.

At the time the Grand Jury visited the Jail in Eldridge-street the keeper was absent, and considerable reluctance was manifested by the Deputy to allow them to examine the premises, but after remarking that "it would have a bad look to refuse," he conducted the Jury through the building. We here found that unless witnesses committed to this Jail are able to pay $10 a week in advance for board, they are confined in the upper room of the prison, and no distinction is made between them and other prisoners. This room is about fifty feet long, nine feet wide and eight feet and a half high, and from ten to twenty persons are confined in it at the same time. Here, as at the Tombs, the beds are in a most filthy condition and without sheets or pillows. They are placed against both sides of the room, with a space of about 18 inches between them. There is no yard or other place provided for exercise, and witnesses are not allowed to leave the room in which they are confined, unless they can afford to pay an officer to accompany them to the street, nor, as we are informed, can they send a note or message to any friend without paying for the service. There is no furniture in the room, not even chairs or benches, except the beds, and a small table. Great complaints are justly made in regard to the food, particularly as to its quality, and such as it is, it is served to them without the common conveniences of knives, forks or plates.

Witnesses are frequently held here in such close confinement, and on such miserable fare for months, that the health of some of them has been thereby seriously impaired. One witness now in this prison has been there about five months. While we must condemn both the Tombs and the Eldridge-street Jail as utterly unfit places to which to commit witnesses, we would, on account of the advantage the Tombs affords for exercise in the open air, and its superiority in respect to the food provided and the mode in which it is served, request those having authority in the matter at once to remove the witnesses now in the Eldridge-street Jail to the Tombs, until some more suitable place than the latter can be provided.

The Grand Jury deem it their duty also to present, as a public evil for which some remedy should be provided, the system of imprisoning witnesses to await the trial of criminal cases. Gross injustice and cruel hardships are inflicted upon innocent persons against whom there is no suspicion of crime, by holding them in close confinement for months, regardless of the necessities of their families or the injury that may result to their property or business. Nor can this Grand Jury believe that the perpetration of this outrageous wrong is at all necessary to secure the proper execution of the laws. A law providing that the evidence of witnesses who cannot give bail for their subsequent appearance, shall be taken as soon after the commission of a crime as will allow reasonable notice to be given to the prisoner, and that the evidence with the cross-examinations so taken shall be filed with the Clerk of the Court and made subject to the call of either party at the trial on the proof of the death or absence of the witness who gave it, would in the judgment of this Grand Jury, remove from our statute books a cruel and odious anomaly, and at the same time would more effectually conduce to the ends of justice by making witnesses ready to testify who are now as anxious to escape "the horrors of the law" as the criminal himself.

While this Grand Jury earnestly hope that the law authorizing the imprisonment of witnesses may be essentially modified, they deem it their duty as long as the present law remains in force, to protest against their confinement in common with persons charged with crime, and in places wholly unfit for the purpose, and without ventilation, cleanliness or opportunity for exercise. If witnesses must still be imprisoned to secure their testimony at subsequent periods, common humanity demands that decent accommodation and fare should be furnished to them during their imprisonment, and this Grand Jury would earnestly request this honorable Court to make such representation in the premises to the proper authorities as will induce the United States Government to procure and suitably furnish proper accommodations for its witnesses, which shall be entirely under the control of its own officers, and under its own direction and control. By order of the Grand Jury

JOHN S. BUSSING, Foreman.

NEW-YORK, April 3, 1858.

The Boston Journal says: "Marcus Cane, a German Jew pedler, of the firm of Wm. Cane & Brother, of Bleecker street, New-York City, was arrested in January, 1857, by Officer J. C. Brown, of Waterbury, Vt., after a pursuit of 49 days, through five States, as one of a gang concerned in the robbery of the store of Stacy Courtis, No. 129 Milk-street, Boston, in November, 1855, and selling the stolen goods in Vermont during the months of January and March following. He was tried on the 20th inst., at Montpelier, Vt., by a Jury of Washington County, found guilty of larceny, and now awaits in jail the sentence of the Court."

RICE—Sales have been reported of 80 tcs. at $3 50@$4 ⅌ 100 lbs. Stock, April 1, 10,414 tcs. and 410 bags in 1858, against 6,810 tcs. in 1857.

SPICES—Are in better request at uniform quotations.

SUGARS—The demand is brisker from the trade and from refiners; prices exhibit no important change. Sales 1,200 hhds., including Cuba at 6¼c.@7c., and New-Orleans at 5⅞c.@7⅞c.; 200 hhds. Melado on terms not disclosed; and 750 boxes Havana, chiefly at from 6⅞c.@8½c. ⅌ lb.

The sales of Manufactured during March were 19,659 packages, against 25,969 packages same month last year. Stock of Manufactured, April 1, 29,042 packages in 1858, against 39,468 packages in 1857.

WOOL—The market for domestic Wool has gained a little more animation and firmness, owing in part to the influence of some inquiry from speculators. We have heard of sales of 30,000 lbs. fleece at 25c.@36c., cash, and 45,000 lbs. pulled at 23c.@24c. for No. 1; 26c.@28c. for superfine, and 28c.@33c. for extra, all cash, ⅌ lb. ENGAGEMENT OF MR THALBERG, and MADAME D'ANGRI.
On WEDNESDAY, April 7, at 8, will commence
MUSARD'S CONCERTS,
to continue every night during one month.
THE ORCHESTRA engaged for
MUSARD'S CONCERTS,
in addition to the
DISTINGUISHED SOLO PLAYERS FROM PARIS, will be the most stupendous ever presented to an American public, consisting of
ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY PERFORMERS.

To give to these concerts the greatest possible éclat, an engagement has been effected with MR. THALBERG and
MME. D'ANGRI,
who will appear at the first ten concerts.
THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC has been renovated—a costly carpet has been laid down in the lobbies and
ONE HUNDRED SOFAS
have been distributed over the corridors.
On the first floor will be found a tastefully decorated
TEA AND COFFEE ROOM, which will be under the superintendence of Mr Moffat.
REFRESHMENTS MAY BE ORDERED, to be brought inside the house by TWENTY WAITERS IN LIVERY, who will be stationed in the parquet and balconies.
THE STAGE WITH THE ORCHESTRA, will be decorated in the most tasteful manner.
A splendid and novel scene representing
AN OCTAGONAL CONCERT ROOM, WITH CLOSED CEILING,
Thus acting as a Sounding Board, having been expressly painted by
SIGNOR GUIDICINI.
It will be illuminated by
TWENTY-FIVE MONSTER CANDELABRAS AND NEW AND SPLENDID CHANDELIERS, expressly manufactured by Mr. Cornelius, of Philadelphia.
Altogether, Mr Ullman pledges himself that
THE MUSARD CONCERTS
will form the
MOST COLOSSAL AND ARTISTIC ENTERTAINMENT that has ever been introduced in America as the Director appeals in these concerts to all classes of the community.
THE PRICE OF ADMISSION has been fixed to all parts of the Academy at FIFTY CENTS

Seats may be secured in advance, at 50 cents extra, at the office of the Academy of Music, at C BREUSING'S, No. 701 Broadway, and SIBELL'S, No. 20 Wall-st., corner of Nassau.

THE SALE OF SEATS
will commence on Tuesday, at 9 precisely.
THE FREE LIST INVARIABLY SUSPENDED.

TO THE PUBLIC.

Mr. Ullman flatters himself that this undertaking will result in another of those successes with which he has been honored at the hands of the public. He has had occasion during the brilliant season that has just expired to make numerous promises and he alludes, with no small self-gratulation, to the fact that he has always strictly fulfilled them. He will do so now.

With regard to Mr. Musard, Mr. Ullman would say that having originated the celebrated promenade concerts at the Hotel d'Osmond, and being bound by contract for the last ten years to conduct the orchestra of the famous opera balls, he has steadily refused all engagements out of Paris. But the demolition of the Hotel d'Osmond gives Mr. Musard a momentary leave of absence, which he improved so far as to accept an engagement to fill up in America the Autumn and Summer season, and to return in time for the carnival festivities of the Winter of 1858.

will be given in the COMPLETEST AND MOST IMPOSING STYLE.

For this purpose an engagement has been effected with MR THALBERG,
who necessarily had to be largely indemnified, as he had to give up his concert tour, which since his arrival in this country has netted him an average profit of $15,000 per month. Mr. Ullman confidently expects that this announcement will be received with enthusiasm, as well as that of MADAME D'ANGRI,
who during the late opera season has risen in public estimation with every fresh appearance she has made, and occupies at the present moment the most prominent place among the cantatrices now in the country.
THE MONSTER ORCHESTRA will be the
GRANDEST, COMPLETEST AND MOST COLOSSAL that has ever been brought before the American public. It will greatly exceed, both in numbers and quality, the orchestra of the New-York Philharmonic Society and of Jullien's concerts. It will comprise
ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY of the best professors of the City including MUSARD'S SOLO PLAYERS FROM PARIS.

Some idea of its extraordinary strength may be formed from the fact that its numbers not less than SIXTY FIRST-RATE VIOLINS,
THIRTY CONTRA BASSES AND CELLOS,
NINE TROMBONES and TWENTY DRUMS, exclusive of the usual number of WIND AND BRASS INSTRUMENTS, such a mass of instruments being required to give due effect to MUSARD'S MONSTER QUADRILLES, as composed by him, and which have earned for him all over Europe the name of LE ROI DU QUADRILLE.
The programme will comprise every evening
TWO GRAND OVERTURES,
THREE MONSTER QUADRILLES, WITH SOLOS.
(1. Plain—2 Descriptive—3 Comic.)
TWO BRILLIANT POLKAS.
(1. Rondo polka, with solo—2. Military.)
ONE DESCRIPTIVE GALLOP,
BY THE MONSTER ORCHESTRA,
relieved by
TWO PIANO SOLOS BY THALBERG,
TWO ARIAS BY MME. D'ANGRI,
A CORNET SOLO BY LEGENDRE, and AN OPHICLEIDE SOLO BY MOREAU.

The expense of these concerts is necessarily very great—greater than that of any Opera company. The Director frankly believes that no Opera season can be made a paying one, unless the price of a ticket be $2, yet as these concerts will be given EVERY EVENING, and as the concert-going public considerably outnumbers the regular patrons of the Opera, he thinks it advisable for his interest to place the general price of admission to
FIFTY CENTS ONLY to any part of the Academy of Music.

IN CONCLUSION.

Mr. Ullman takes the liberty of addressing himself to the public on a personal matter, with which he certainly would not trouble it if his honor and veracity had not been grossly outraged.

A rumor has been insidiously spread by a person who falsely represents himself as the agent of Monsieur Jullien, to the effect that Monsieur Musard—whom Mr Ullman presents to the public—is not the same Musard who has been conducting the concerts at the Chateau des Fleurs, the Paris Crystal Palace, the Hotel d'Osmond, and the Opera Balls; and that the European celebrity of the name has never been enjoyed by him, but by his father.

Mr Ullman flatters himself that the good name he believes to have earned as the manager of Madame Sontag, Mr Thalberg, Henri Herz, Signor Sivori and of the late Opera season, will be a sure guarantee against a similar deceit being attempted by him; but from what might perhaps be called over-sensitiveness he begs distinctly to state that, although the father of Monsieur Musard has been a conductor of reputation—just as was the father of Strauss of Vienna—yet the present Musard is the same who since the last eighteen years, has been monopolizing all the celebrity of the name. He has been the sole conductor of the above mentioned concerts and balls; he is the composer of the Bœufs et moutons Quadrille the Zouaves at Malakoff the Croque'er, the Paillasse, &c. He is the same Musard who made the sensation at the celebrated Bal Costumé given by the Queen of England in 1845—his father in consequence of a stroke of apoplexy, having retired several years previously.

To corroborate his statement, Mr. Ullman begs to subjoin the following articles:

From the Paris Constitutionnel, (March 4,) by Fiorentino, the celebrated Feuilletoniste.

Here is again news which puts the promenaders in mourning from the café Riche to Tortoni. Musard has been taken away from us by Mr. Ullman, the Director of the Academy of Music at New-York, and leaves for America. We shall no longer see in letters of fire, upon the terrace of the Hotel d'Osmond, that name beloved of belles. Alas! The hotels and the concerts are demolished at one blow. It is said that many widows are about to resume their mourning, and that many demoiselles will suppress their reverences when in the lanciers quadrille they turn towards the orchestra. In fact, without speaking of the genius of Musard, which is acknowledged by all the world, it is true that he was always dressed with extreme elegance and that he directed his musicians with all the gallantry in the world, holding his baton in the tips of his fingers smiling to every one with the greatest good humor, and marking the time with the slightest movement of the left foot. He was always standing in the best attitude (bien posé) whether his full face was turned to the audience, or whether they could see only his profile on a three-quarter view.

Musard leaves us, then, for the country of the Yankees. It is painful, but in Paris one forgets quickly. One thought, however, preoccupies my mind; and what that is I am going to tell you with my usual frankness.

You are well aware that many young persons who frequented the concerts Musard were commonly designated by the pretty name of Musardines. What will become of these young girls who are thus suddenly debaptized all at once without their consent? Will they turn their steps towards the "Concerts de Paris" in the Rue St Honoré? Very well; but what name will they adopt in future? They cannot call themselves Parisiennes, for then they may be confounded with an old enterprise of the citadines (cabs) which, in conformity with the new ordinance, are to run by the quarter of an hour or by the minute.

Get out of it the best way you can. I wash my hands of the whole affair.

From the Paris Entr' Acte, Feb 28.

The following critique upon "Bon Negre," an operetta by M. Alfred Musard, produced at the Folies Nouvelles, is translated from the Paris Entr' Acte, of February 28:

LE BON NEGRE, AN OPERA BY MUSARD.

Before quitting Paris for America. Musard, king of the quadrille, left a souvenir for his numerous subjects, who will not soon forget him. The operetta of "Le Bon Negre" will certainly be the foundation for a great number of new quadrilles. We may also expect to see upon the advertisements of the balls the polka "Bon Negre Lancelot," redowa composed upon the motives "Du Bon Negre," and perhaps "Musard aux Folies Nouvelles" quadrille with grand orchestra.

It is easy to divine that the partition of M. Musard proceeds from the baton of a chef d'orchestre, it is the music that goes straight to the legs; nevertheless it is exceedingly well written, and very agreeable to the ear; every point is the point of a master. The "Song of the Negro," which piece is full of verve and local color, was the most applauded. The plot is not very complicated, but it is amusing, original, and full of droll situations, &c., &c.

From Harper's Weekly, April 3

[The editor of this celebrated paper, who, as may be seen from the contents of the article copied, has heard and seen Musard in Paris, is another authority in favor of Mr. Ullman's statement.]

BOHEMIAN WALKS AND TALKS.

MUSARD.—"Fiorentino" has in one of his latest feuilletons, a great lament for the Musardines now that Musard has gone to the "country of the Yankees." Now that the Hotel d'Osmond has lost its prime caterer, the condition of its customers is truly pitiable. Who forgets the fiery sign in front of the salon? Who does not remember the various occult games and sports that were practiced in the ante rooms of the concert, the aim whereof (the games I mean) seemed to be to transfer all the small change from your pocket to that of the keeper of the table? The numerous photographs of Musard and his lieutenants, in various shapes; the innocent looking pumpiers, in their brass helmets and baggy trousers; the affable sergens de ville, who told you to "move on" with an air that could not be resisted? And the salon itself? What a charming lounge! What a delicious place for the enjoyment of the post-prandial cigar! The hall opening on each side into a garden—one could either listen to the music quietly or promenade, or get away into a quiet corner of the garden, where the melody came softened, like the murmurs of a waterfall. Paris is generally too noisy—there is too much out of doors about it; but the Hotel d'Osmond had many a sly, flirting corner. The price of admission was only nominal—one franc—and every one went. I have seen some of Hail Columbia's proudest and fairest daughters intermixed with the Musardines.

From the Courrier des Etats Unis, the New-York French paper, published April 2

MUSARD.—Some of our cotemporaries are just now engaged in a discussion which is quite amusing. Is the Musard imported by Ullman, the great Musard, or only his son and counterfeit?

It is very easy to set everybody right. M Musard, who is actually in New-York, is not the founder of his dynasty; but he is not the less the great Musard, as he has inherited from his father a great number of years ago the sceptre, the popularity and the celebrity.

In other words Monsieur Musard is the authentic Musard of the grand Parisian orchestras.

Mr. Ullman is of the opinion that the indorsement of the Parisian articles by the editors of the well known New-York French paper, who, of course, must necessarily be well posted up, clearly demonstrates the absurdity and falseness of these slanderous insinuations. He has, moreover, made arrangements for the translation and publication of Musard's biography, from the original French of Eugene de Mirecourt, whose series of little books, La Galerie des Contemporains, is well known in this country, and may be had at any foreign music store.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

In the State Senate, on Saturday, a report was made in favor of amending the Charter of this City, so as to provide for paying members of the Common Council four dollars per day for their services. A bill was introduced by Mr. SPINOLA, to repeal the law establishing the Brooklyn City Railroad Company. A resolution was introduced, and referred to the New-York delegation, providing for the appointment of a Committee of three Senators to examine the Health Department of this City, and report if any legislation is necessary to render it more efficient. The Assembly hurried through a large amount of business, most of it of little general interest. A bill for the equalization of the State tax was introduced, and referred to a special Committee. The Brooklyn Ferry bill was ordered to a third reading. The bill to promote the efficiency of the State Militia was passed.

Mr. ALLIBONE, late President of the Bank of Pennsylvania, and THOMAS A NEWHALL, late a Director of the same institution, have been indicted by the Grand Jury in Philadelphia for conspiracy.

A munificent bequest of $800,000 has been left to the city of Cincinnati by CHAS. MCMICKEN, for the establishment of a Free University for the support and education of orphan children between the ages of five and fourteen.

Messrs. LITTLE, BROWN & Co., publishers in Boston, lose $80,000 worth of law-books by the fire in HOUGHTON's printing establishment in Cambridge. Their insurance is $75,000, of which $5,000 is in the Market Company of this City.

The steamship Cahawba, from New-Orleans and Havana, arrived last night, having left the latter port on the 30th ult. There was no news of importance. Business continued very dull, and the prices of sugars were maintained.

The Grand Jury of the United States Circuit Court closed their labors for this term by a presentment in relation to the treatment of witnesses, which will be found in another column, and which is worthy of interest.

The mutilated human remains found on Friday afternoon packed in a whisky barrel at the freight depot of the Hudson River Railroad, Canal-street, were those of a female. No additional evidence calculated to unravel the mystery has yet been elicited by the Coroner, who has for the present adjourned the inquest.

The murder of SAMUELS, the unfortunate young man whose body was found in the East River, is involved in greater mystery than ever. The evidence submitted before the Coroner's Jury at the Second Precinct Station-house, on Saturday, showed that the body was found near the foot of Washington-street, Brooklyn, and not off Beekman-street, New-York, as was first stated. It is now generally believed that the murder was committed in Brooklyn, somewhere near the foot of Washington-street. At that place there is a large pile of stones similar to the one which was found attached to the body. Some, however, think that the murder was committed near the Fulton Ferry, this side, and the body afterwards taken across the river in a boat and sunk in the place where it was found. The funeral of SAMUELS took place yesterday afternoon, from the residence of his father, in Adams-street, Brooklyn. It was very largely attended. The body was placed in a receiving vault in Greenwood.

BARNEY FOY, who was beaten and robbed in Brooklyn in the latter part of March, died yesterday of the injuries he then received. JOHN BEHAN and MICHAEL MALONEY, his assailants, are in custody.

The friends of JAMES MURRAY, who is missing from his home in Brooklyn, believe that he has been murdered.

The burial of JOHN GREGORY, Alderman of the Ninth District, took place on Saturday. The funeral services were performed in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Twentieth-street, and the remains were interred in Greenwood Cemetery. The Mayor and Recorder, and the members of both Boards of the Common Council were present.

A boy named JOHN MCCARTHY, 15 years of age, was shot with a pistol, about 9 o'clock Saturday evening, in the dance-house and drinking place No. 38 North William-street, by a young man named LEWIS ROSCIUS. The ball entered the region of the left groin, and was extracted at the Hospital. The wound is not a serious one. ROSCIUS is in custody.

There were 446 deaths in the City last week—30 less than during the week preceding. Of those 21 were produced by small-pox, and 10 by violent causes.

The General Markets on Saturday were somewhat brisker and firmer for Cotton. A lively inquiry prevailed for Flour, chiefly the low grades of State and Western, prices of which favored factors. Wheat was more active but not so firm. Corn was scarce and in demand at full rates. Sugars were in better request and were stiffly held. Provisions attracted considerable attention, and hog products were rather dearer. Freights were quiet, with 640 vessels of all classes in port.

Messrs S. ROSS, of No. 208 South First-street, Brooklyn, and his son, a lad of 15 years, drove over an embankment on Sixth-street, near Norman-avenue, between Green Point and Williamsburg, on Saturday night, falling several feet. Life was entirely extinct when their bodies were found yesterday. The Coroner's Jury censured the owner of the property on which the accident occurred for not erecting [illegible] barriers.

The Kansas Question.

It is pleasant to see the special organs of the Administration putting so cheerful a face upon the Lecompton vote in the House of Representatives. The Washington Union, which has come to be only an offshoot of the Herald in this City, has adopted the opinion of that intelligent journal, that both houses agree upon the main point, and only differ in regard to unessential and unimportant forms. Both are in favor of admitting Kansas:—the only difference between them is that, while the Senate insist upon forcing it in—without regard to the wishes of the people, the House propose to consult and abide by their will upon the subject.

If this difference is, in the view of the Administration, a mere matter of form, why should not the Administration waive formalities and yield to the preference of the House? If there is to be an error on either side, it should be on the side of excessive deference to the will of the people in Kansas. Does not a strict and rigid adherence to the doctrine of popular sovereignty,—which is the corner-stone just at present of the Democratic Party,—require this course to be pursued? If the principle were of long standing, and well settled in the party platform, it might be safe to tamper with it, and even ignore it now and then. But it is too new to be safely submitted to such a process. There is great danger that the Opposition may steal this Democratic thunder, and appropriate it solely and exclusively to their own uses. They have already secured the author of it, and they are very likely to adopt the principle itself. The prospect certainly is quite as good as was that of its adoption by the Democratic Party when it was first proposed.

The Union, having dismissed this matter of submission or no-submission to the people as a mere formality, fastens upon another objection to the bill as it passed the House. It declares that > "The proposition that a Territory may form a constitution and be admitted into the Union under it, by proclamation of the President without any supervision of the constitution by Congress, is so palpably violative of the express letter of the constitution, that we are confident the Senate can never agree to it. It is for 'the Congress' to admit new States and guarantee to the Union that their governments shall be republican."

It certainly is no new thing for Congress to admit new States upon conditions,—and this is precisely what is proposed to be done in this case. The condition is the adoption of the Lecompton Constitution by the people:—if that is complied with, Congress admits the State,—the President's proclamation being only a declaration of the fact that the condition has been fulfilled, and that the act of Congress therefore takes effect.

But the Union's zeal for the intervention of Congress, in the matter of the Constitution, is a little dangerous. It has hitherto held that Congress had nothing to do with the Constitutions of new States. Now, it holds that they must be submitted to its "supervision." If the Constitution of Kansas must be made to suit Congress, is there not some danger that the members of that body may claim the right to dictate its provisions in regard to Slavery?

The fact is, the Union is troubled about the passage of the Kansas bill, and it throws out all sorts of suggestions for the purpose of catching the few votes needed to pass it. It appeals vociferously to the Republicans not to be betrayed by the Douglas Democrats. It appeals to the Douglas Democrats to beware of the South Americans. And it prays the South Americans not to surrender their distinctive position and principles to either of the others. These frantic efforts say much more for the Union's perplexity than for its logic and good sense. Men are not to be influenced by such random and incoherent attempts upon their credulity or their fears. We do not regard the fate of the Kansas bill in the House as beyond doubt;—but we do not believe that any of the members of that body are likely to be moved by the Union's rhetoric, or to be in the least disturbed by its zealous concern for their political welfare.

Spain and Mexico—The Purchase of Sonora.

By the last mail from Europe we received information that M. ISTURITZ, President of the Spanish Council, had formally announced that the Mexican President had promised to satisfy the demands of Spain. We published on Thursday, the text of the Minister's speech, and its tone left no room to doubt that, as far as Spain was concerned, she would prefer to settle her difficulties with Mexico by negotiation rather than by war. A prudent policy would have dictated such a course from the outset; and it is to be inferred that Spanish statesmen, with all their affected opposition to the mediation of France and England, were wise enough to foresee that a protracted war with Mexico could be of no possible advantage to Spain, but might destroy the integrity of her empire. We are, therefore, ready to receive, with all credence, the statements of M. ISTURITZ that the differences with Mexico can be as readily settled by negotiation as by a resort to arms. Indeed, our Havana Correspondent some time ago, made the first announcement of this termination of the pending difficulty, and he further stated that a draft of a treaty had been already agreed upon between the Captain-General of Cuba and the Mexican Representative.

Supposing, then,—as we have good ground to suppose,—that the difficulties between Spain and Mexico are virtually adjusted, there are some important inferences to be drawn therefrom. Such a settlement involves, in the first place, the Spanish support of the existing Government in Mexico; and, in the second, it removes all necessity for the services of SANTA ANNA. We have heard it stated that President ZULOAGA is in league with SANTA ANNA, and is only preparing the way for his return to power. But this is improbable. It is not at all likely that ZULOAGA, if he possesses any stability at all, will voluntarily abandon his authority and position in favor of another. One fact is certain: his conciliation of Spain, and his restoration of the Church property, will have greatly strengthened his tenure of office. Without these acts his Presidency would not have been worth a week's purchase.

The establishment of his power will probably lead to the renewal of negotiations which our Government is known to have commenced, for the purchase of Sonora. All action upon the subject has been suspended by the revolution in Mexico which deprived that country of a Government with which it was possible to treat. Our Minister, Mr. FORSYTH, has instructions which will warrant him in pressing the matter upon the attention of the Mexican Government, the moment any stable administration shall be installed. As Sonora is in a state of rebellion, and as it is not worth to Mexico what it will cost her to reconquer it, it is by no means improbable that she will consent to its sale.

Sonora is situated in the northwest corner of Mexico, and lies along the east shore of the Gulf of California, stretching from the boundary line of the United States possessions at San Diego in North latitude, 32½° South to the 22d parallel, and extending to the mountains eastward; it embraces an area of 120,000 square miles with a population of 140,000. Its chief attractions are its silver mines, which are the richest in America, its fertile soil, its delightful climate—and last though not least, its harbor of Guaymas, equal, it is said, to that of San Francisco itself. Guaymas is situated on the middle of the California Gulf. It is as yet an insignificant town, scarcely more important than San Francisco was when California fell into American hands. But with one of the best harbors on the Pacific coast, where good harbors are so rare, it must be the dépôt and entrepôt for the mining trade of Northwestern Mexico, so soon as that region shall become ours; and perhaps it is not too much to expect for it as great a proportionate prosperity as has befallen the city of the Golden Gate.

The Latest Mysterious Murder.

Give us Coroner CONNERY for a mystery! He has sharper senses for it than any public officer within our knowledge;—and if he cannot find one, he can make it. He has already rendered it next to impossible ever to detect and convict the murderer of Dr. BURDELL;—it will be through no fault of his, if the same friendly office is not rendered to the murderers of young SAMUELS, whose case Coroner CONNERY now has in hand.

The Coroner's conduct of this investigation has been eminently characteristic. It seems that on Thursday afternoon a couple of policemen found a dead body lying upon the pier at the foot of Beekman-street, with a stone tied to it and a deep knife-wound in the breast. They took it forthwith to the Second Ward Station-house, reporting that it had been taken out of the water by persons grappling for rope. On Friday the inquest was commenced,—and the body was soon identified as that of young SAMUELS. The first point to be ascertained, one would suppose, would be how the body came upon the pier,—and where it came there from. The Coroner, however, pursued a different process. He assumed that it was fished up from the water in the dock,—inferred from this assumption that the murder was committed in that immediate vicinity, and proceeded to take testimony of which the object was to implicate a man named CURTIS, keeper of an oyster stand near the foot of Beekman-street. Several persons testified to having seen SAMUELS in his company on Wednesday night; it was proved that CURTIS had borrowed some rope a day or two before, and it was observed that he did not open his oyster-stand on Thursday morning. The result of the first day's inquest was this,—and no more. The next day upset the whole theory which this testimony had induced. The boatmen who found the body were examined, as they should have been at the very outset, and then it turned out that the body was found on the Brooklyn side of the river, and brought over here, because the tide made it more convenient to land upon this side than upon the other; that the stone tied to it was of the same kind as a heap of stone lying at the foot of Washington-street in Brooklyn—that the cord with which it was fastened was not in the least like that which CURTIS borrowed, and that the parties who professed to have seen the two persons together on Wednesday night had no acquaintance with SAMUELS, sufficient to make their identification at all reliable. Of course the theory that CURTIS was the murderer is effectually destroyed. The only marvel is, that under the circumstances this consummation was reached before the end of a week's inquest.

The scene is now transferred to Brooklyn, although the testimony taken on the second day was still in regard to the supposed companionship of the deceased with CURTIS on Wednesday night. It seems, however, that he was last seen by his father at No. 235 Adams-street, Brooklyn, at 8 o'clock on the evening of the Saturday preceding the Thursday on which his body was found. It is stated that after this he called upon Miss CURTIS, a young lady to whom he was paying his addresses, in Washington-street,—that he spent the evening there, and made an appointment to go with her to the Church of the Holy Trinity, in Clinton-street, the next morning. It was nearly 11 o'clock when he left the house, and the young lady and her mother went to the door with him, and saw him turn out of Washington into Tillary-street, to return to his father's house in Adams-street, which was the next street. This was the last time he was seen alive—so far as yet appears—by any person who knew him, and as his body was found in the river at the foot of Washington-street, with a stone attached to his body similar in character to a pile of stones on the wharf at that point, the inference is almost inevitable that he was murdered in passing from Washington into Adams-street, and his body dragged the whole length of the street, nearly a mile, and thrown into the river. It was a dark, drizzly night, and looking at the many deeds of villainy which are constantly perpetrated in Brooklyn without the culprits being detected by the Police authorities, there is nothing startling or improbable in the supposition that the unfortunate youth was set upon by some of the prowling desperadoes who infest the streets of that ill-guarded City, and murdered for the purposes of robbery. The circumstance of his pockets being turned inside out would certainly lend to such a belief. Instances of men being attacked and robbed in the streets of Brooklyn are by no means uncommon. It was only last week that a gentleman was robbed near the Montague Ferry at an early hour in the evening. To save his life he quietly gave up the contents of his pockets; and not long ago another gentleman, in going home from a party, was attacked in Court-street by a robber, who even took the gold studs and sleeve-buttons out of his shirt.

The only circumstance that conflicts with the supposition that young SAMUELS was murdered that night while on his way to his father's house, and then dragged down to the river, is the improbability that a robber would have taken so much trouble to dispose of the body, which might have been left on the sidewalk after the pockets had been rifled. The police being in possession of all the facts of the case, will, of course, make all proper investigation to detect the perpetrators of this terrible murder; but if they wait to receive their cue from the examination before Coroner CONNERY, we fear that they will lose the opportunity of discovering any facts which will lead to the clearing up of the mystery in which the whole affair is now involved.

The New Ministry and the Conspiracy Bill—Bernard's Trial.

It is more than probable that the Derby Ministry will await the result of SIMON BERNARD's trial in the Central Criminal Court, before introducing their edition of the Conspiracy Bill. Lord PALMERSTON's opponents in reality joined issue with him on two points. They denied, first, that the law as it stood was not sufficient to deal with conspiracies to commit crimes abroad; and in the next place, affirmed that even if it were insufficient, that was not the time to alter it. Now, the last of these points is, and must remain, a matter of opinion, prejudice or passion. There is no standard by which either the Opposition or the Ministry can decide how much or how little indifference to foreign remonstrances on questions of domestic legislation is called for by the national honor. What ROEBUCK thinks the basest sycophancy, PALMERSTON looks upon as the purest justice. The words dignity and self-respect have different meanings in the mouths of every two men. No considerable number of persons of any class or party will ever measure them by the same gauge.

But whether a foreigner can conspire in England to commit murder abroad without being held liable by the English courts as an accessory before the fact, is a question of law, which may and must be passed upon, as all questions of law are, by the Judges. If they decide in the negative, a prima facie case for legislation is at once made out; but if it should prove by the result of BERNARD's trial that ample means of connecting him with the great crime, which he undoubtedly assisted in planning, already exist, any change in the state of the law would be clearly proved to be unnecessary, and we feel satisfied France would not be barefaced enough to expect it. There is therefore every reason in the world for waiting before introducing a new conspiracy bill; and the excuse will no doubt be accepted by Derbyites as a godsend. They are clearly in a very uncomfortable fix, out of which BERNARD's conviction may carry them in triumph, as no other event within the range of probability would do half as much to justify PALMERSTON's overthrow.

A violent discussion raged in the House of Commons upon the point of law before the overthrow of the late Ministry. The act which applies to offences such as that with which BERNARD is charged, is the 9 Geo IV. ch 31, and the whole question turns upon whether the phrase, "his Majesty's subjects," included foreigners resident in England. Sir RICHARD BETHELL—the late Attorney-General, and probably the ablest equity lawyer in England, stoutly maintained that it did not; but he has since his retirement from office been utterly demolished by the citation of the famous case of the "Post Nati," or as it is more generally called, Calvin's case, in which the legal definition of "subject" is expressly declared to be, any one, who for the time owes the king local obedience by living within the realm. This effectually disposes of this branch of the question, but another and more formidable difficulty has been raised which none of the master disputants have touched, which is this: A man can clearly not be indicted in England for an offence committed in a foreign country; consequently, had BERNARD murdered the Emperor in Paris, he could not have been indicted for it in London. Can he, therefore, be held liable as an accessory, when, had he been the principal, he would have passed harmless?

A number of very interesting questions of international law will doubtless be raised on the trial, and it is somewhat gratifying to find that our own great jurist, Chancellor KENT, has been appealed to on the subject, as one of the guiding lights of modern jurisprudence, and a better one, moreover, upon this class of questions, than can be met with in England.

City Railroads.

We observe that a great outcry is made about a bill pending in the State Legislature, to permit (with the assent of our Common Council,) the construction of a Railroad through streets running parallel to Broadway, on the west side. The Herald, with characteristic accuracy, describes the road as running through Broadway:—and large placards posted about town call upon tax-payers to rush to Albany to prevent their interests from being "attacked in a new quarter." As the bill proposes no expenditure of money by the City, but will bring an increase of revenue from licensed cars and the increased value of up-town property which would follow the construction of the road, it is not easy to see the grounds for this appeal.

Our own conviction is very decided that the construction of the proposed road would not only injure nobody, but that it would be of very great public benefit,—and that it is the only step, moreover, which will prevent the construction of a Railroad through Broadway itself. That scheme we have always opposed,—upon the ground that Broadway is too narrow, and that it should be preserved for pedestrians and private carriages. But there is a very strong public sentiment in favor of a Broadway Railroad, and unless the public accommodations of such a road are afforded in some other way, it will assuredly, sooner or later, be built. Broadway is overcrowded with public vehicles. The Sixth and Eighth avenue roads on the west, and the Fourth and Third on the east side, have done something to relieve it. But they are too far from it on either side sensibly to affect that steadily and rapidly increasing tide of travel which pours through this great artery of our metropolis. Broadway needs still further depletion:—and experience shows conclusively that parallel railroads offer the best possible means of accomplishing it. The objections which were originally urged against them have disappeared. Instead of injuring, they have benefited the streets through which they pass. They interrupt no ordinary traffic. They have made the upper part of the City far more accessible, and have added greatly to the value of its property and the number of its residents. The only objection to them is that they are overcrowded,—and this can be obviated by increasing the facilities which they afford.

The bill now in the Legislature proposes to run the road down Seventh-avenue to its intersection with Broadway,—through Broadway to University-place, and through that street to Mercer and so down town. We see no valid objection to the route proposed, and very many reasons in its favor. It will accommodate thousands of persons whose wants are not met by any of the existing roads. It will not injure any of the streets through which it leads, while it will prove of decided benefit to the character and value of some of them. And it will deprive the advocates of the Broadway road of all excuse for urging that scheme upon public attention, as it will afford to the public the very accommodations for which that road is advocated. It naturally meets the opposition of a few residents upon the route, who naturally suppose themselves entitled to perpetual seclusion and immunity from the crowd and bustle of City life, and of the stage proprietors who might suffer somewhat from the diversion of business to pleasanter and more convenient channels. But the interest of the public at large would be decidedly and immensely promoted by the construction of the road.

It is urged, with great force and some effect, that the whole scheme is one of private interest,—that speculators are at the bottom of it, and that their main object is pecuniary gain. We have very little doubt that the fact is so,—but we do not consider this as by any means conclusive against the road, if its construction would promote the public good. It is unfortunately true that no great public enterprise is undertaken now-a-days from purely public and disinterested motives: private enterprise and private gain are at the bottom of all the great movements of the day. This will probably always be the case; and all that we can reasonably require is that speculators shall seek their profit in benefiting rather than in injuring the community.

REDUCTION OF CANAL TOLLS.—The Canal Board adopted a very important measure on Friday, by reducing the tolls on merchandise from four mills to two mills per thousand pounds per mile, and on flour from three mills to two mills. This change will tend to make a large increase in Canal business. Whether it will not also reduce the aggregate revenue, is a serious question. But its advantage to the business community and to the transportation interests, must be great,

The Canals will open with every indication of a prosperous season. Last year there was unusual and vexatious delay in the commencement of navigation. Nor was this all; for a still greater misfortune befell in the scarcity of freight at the West. There was very little produce to come down, and consequently little merchandise to go up. For the first half of the season, lumber from the Genesee Valley and Tonawanda constituted most of the loading which boats were able to obtain; and the monetary crisis extinguished the Fall business which otherwise promised to be considerable.

Appearances this Spring are much more cheering. General business will be healthy and active, and Canal trade must feel the influence of the rising wave.

The following is the resolution of the Canal Board, reducing tolls. It was adopted unanimously:

Resolved, (If the Legislature concur,) That the rates of toll on the following articles of property transported upon the Canals of this State be reduced as follows, if the Canal Board shall find it expedient to do so, to protect the revenue of the Canals, to wit:

	1859. From. Cts.	M.	Fr.	1858. To. Cts.	M.	Fr.
Flour and Whisky	0	3	0	0	2	0

Resolved, That the Auditor be directed to transmit a copy of the above resolution to the Legislature, and ask a concurrence therein on behalf of this Board.

The Utah Mails.

We are glad to learn that the Postmaster-General has concluded a contract with JOHN M. HOCKADAY and others, for the transportation of a weekly mail between St Joseph's, Mo., and Salt Lake City. This route has long been in the hands of inefficient or incompetent parties, who have utterly failed to render any service worth naming. The contractors to whom the route was awarded less than a year ago, have never occupied less than forty-five days,—and in several instances have consumed two, three and four months in getting letters and papers to the camp of the Army of Utah. The Postmaster-General has declared their contract forfeited, and made a new one with HOCKADAY & Co., who agree to perform the service weekly, in only eighteen days each way, after they shall have had time to get in good running trim. At present they will be allowed twenty-two days for the trip. Mr. HOCKADAY's familiarity with the country over which this route lies, and his well known energy and enterprise give us ample assurance that the contract will be fulfilled to the letter. We understand that the new contractors purpose to commence their service next month, in four-horse coaches, thus not only affording us a reliable weekly mail,—but furnishing also to travellers across the plains a comfortable mode of journeying to and from Salt Lake.

New contracts have also been made for similar service twice a month between Salt Lake and Sacramento, California, via Carson's Valley—time sixteen days only each way, instead of thirty, as at present, to be reduced to twelve days soon. This, with the semi-monthly service between Salt Lake and San Pedro, California—which is continued—makes a weekly communication between the Pacific Coast and the Mormon City, and affords as a weekly overland route from St. Joseph's to California in thirty days, via the great Northern Emigrant Route. The Postmaster-General and Senator GWIN, of California—whose energetic and practical hand is visible in this new enterprise—have displayed much wisdom in effecting this arrangement, and effectively disproved the charge of sectionality so often made against them in connection with the subject of overland routes to the Pacific.

Amusements.

The close of the Opera season and the temporary cessation of musical hostilities at the Academy of Music, leaves us for the time at the mercy of Mr. ULLMAN's pen, and it will be seen by the advertisements elsewhere, that that gentleman is not slow to take advantage of the opportunity. To-day he delivers a pronunciamento on the subject of MUSARD, intended (and successfully) to quell a factious opposition which was beginning to manifest itself. It will be remembered that a correspondent of the TIMES suggested that this MUSARD was not THE MUSARD, but a spurious and inferior article imported at a cheap rate for popular consumption. Mr. ULLMAN, with nothing on his mind but this correspondent, proceeds to demolish him, and in a column bristling with capitals and quotations does the deed.

It is sometimes necessary to inform the world that General JACKSON is dead, and we may therefore, without much over-straining, mention a few facts concerning both MUSARDS—the old gentleman and the young one. MUSARD the elder was the founder of the present fashion of dance-music. He rescued it from the hands of the dancing-master, and gave it a significance which was unknown to the kit-fiddle of that useful member of society. A huge orchestra, filled with the best European players, sprung into existence at his word, and for the first time the world knew what true musical animation meant. A man of infinite ideas, he found in the various movements or figures of the Quadrille a proper medium for communicating them, and the Quadrille became in consequence the vehicle of all the extraordinary eccentricities of his genius. Great popularity was the result, and the two words Musard and Quadrille became synonymous. The elder MUSARD pursued a triumphant career until the year 1842, when, owing to a stroke of apoplexy, he was disabled from further usefulness. He has not, we think, appeared in public since, or at all events but seldom. He lives in retirement somewhere in France, where the vagaries of another sad affliction, which too often clouds the last days of men of intellect, are looked on with a kindly and commiserating eye.

The present MUSARD is the only one of the name known to the Parisian of to day; he has succeeded legitimately to the sceptre of his father, and what is of more importance, he has inherited his genius. To speak of any other MUSARD now is simply absurd. This fact being established, it is our painful duty to remark that MUSARD is not the very young man that enthusiastic maidens have taken him for. He was born in London, during one of his father's professional visits to the English metropolis, on the 1st of March, 1818, and consequently is in his forty-first year. This is a painful illumination, for it must be confessed that without the light of history MUSARD does not "look" more than four or five and twenty. It is this unfair and deceptive juvenility perhaps that has made him the favorite of the ladies, and caused to be created the Society of the Musardines, which Mr. ULLMAN gives us to understand is the only society in Paris worth thinking about. Concerning the Musardines, Mr. MIRECOURT, the French biographical writer, has furnished us with an amusing narrative, in which one "Susannah the Pale" figures with spectral grandeur. Mr. ULLMAN announces that this narrative will be placed within reach of the multitude. It is only necessary to add that Susannah the Pale loved "not wisely but too well." Mr MIRECOURT says that MUSARD behaved in a way worthy of Scipio, which learned remark does unquestionably mean a great deal.

MUSARD has been the leading conductor of the French metropolis for sixteen years. In 1846 he was one of the conductors of the music at Queen VICTORIA's Bal masque; in 1848 he was appointed chef of the bals de l'opera, and has been the head and front of those entertainments ever since; he conducted the monster concerts at the Jardin d'Hiver during the year of the great exposition, and subsequently established those famous Concerts-Musard at the Hotel D'Osmond, which are known all over the world. This MUSARD—of whom we shall have to write soon hereafter—is the one we have here, and the public will do well to judge for itself as to his merit.

Madame D'ANGRI and Mr. THALBERG are to be the soloists. It is unnecessary to say a word of praise in their behalf. At the present moment Madame D'ANGRI is in Boston, but will return in time for the first concert. Mr. THALBERG is already in the city, and announced his presence in a matinée which took place at the Academy on Saturday. The programme was unusually popular for this kind of entertainment, but it failed to attract the usual matinée audience. This was in a measure owing to the fact that immediately after the matinée came the rehearsal of the Philharmonic Society and immediately after that the concert of Mr. SATTER. These things tell on the musical constitution. Mr. THALBERG played as he always plays—unexceptionably; Miss MILNER assisted in the vocal department very efficiently, and Mr. H C. COOPER, the great English violinist, furnished a solo and an accompaniment. An orchestra under the direction of Mr. ANSCHUTZ screeched through a couple of overtures and brayed through the "Wedding March." The performers were not visibly affected.

Mr. SATTER's third grand concert attracted a fine audience—the best of the series so far. Mme. JOHANNSEN was the vocalist, and as a matter of course sang the scene and aria from "Der Frieschutz." To relieve the monotony of this piece Mme. JOHANNSEN also sang "Ernani involami." Nothing can be said of such a selection, except that its execution was common-place. Mr. SCHREIBER played a solo on the cornet, so deliciously and with such perfect musical elocution that he was encored. Mr. EDWARD MOLLENHAUER also played upon the fiddle with long and enduring effect. All violin solos should be cut down one-half; they are cruel inflictions, even when administered by so masterly an executant as MOLLENHAUER. The piano part of the entertainment was of course the best, although there was no startling novelty in it. A reference to the programme is unnecessary. It is sufficient to say that Mr. SATTER once more proved that he is an astonishing artist, and that he is equal to the exigencies of each and every school, but particularly of that which requires breadth and manipulative skill. We very much doubt if there is another player living who can do so much on the piano as can Mr. SATTER.

Mme. LA GRANGE, the most reliable and painstaking prima donna we have had in America, has accepted an engagement under MARETZEK, and plays to-night at Philadelphia. It is said that Mme. LA GRANGE will return to Europe during the Summer, and the rumor probably has some foundation in truth, for it is now positively known that LUMLEY, of Her Majesty's Theatre, will be here in September, and the prospect of reëngagement is not encouraging, particularly as a bad feeling has sprung up between Mme. LA GRANGE's agents and the Lessee of the Academy. Whatever may be the cause of separation, a large and intelligent community will lament its necessity. Whilst on this subject we may mention that Mme. LA GRANGE, with the other members of MARETZEK's company, have been engaged by Mr. STUART for the Theatre at Washington, and will shortly appear in that neat little Temple of the Muses.

A number of excellent entertainments are provided for the present week. In the musical way we direct attention to THALBERG's Brooklyn matinée to-day, at the Athenæum; to the concert announced by Miss STOCKTON, at Dodworth's Saloon, on Tuesday; to a musical entertainment at the Forty-second-street Presbyterian Church, on Wednesday; to the concert of the Hutchinson Family, at Mozart Hall, on Tuesday; to the second soirée of the Haydn Quartette, at the Polytechnic Institute, (Brooklyn,) on Tuesday; and last, but not least, to the Musard Concerts on Wednesday.

In the dramatic world, there are many things strange and unexpected. The cotemporaneous drama has come to a sudden end, and the "legitimate" once more reigns supreme. At the three leading Broadway theatres, we have eminent tragedians, and all "recently from Australia and California." Under the gentle breeze of the cotemporaneous drama, various theatrical craft were steering safely and rapidly to harbor; we hope this sudden squall may not upset any of the noble fleet, although, we must confess, there is something singularly black and threatening in the three announcements, "The Gamester," "The Apostate," and "The Duchess of Malfi." The last-named play is a very old work, written by JOHN WEBSTER, a dramatist of the Elizabethan period. It has been cleaned and polished by Mr. R. H. HORNE, for the especial use of Mr. and Mrs. WALLER, who appear in it to-night at the Broadway Theatre. The "Gamester" is selected by Mr. and Mrs. STARK for their début at Wallack's Theatre. These artists come to us with reputations, and are undoubtedly worthy of critical consideration and generous welcome.

At Laura Keene's an old bill will be repeated; at Niblo's, the wonderful RAVELS continue their [illegible] performances; at the Museum, the "Bride of an "Evening" is to be the "Bride" of the week; at the Bowery, the "Stars," LUCILLE and HELEN WESTERN, appear in character pieces to the intense delight of enormous houses; at the National, the "cotemporaneous" makes a second effort called "Life of the Mormons at Salt Lake; and at Christy & Wood's Minstrels, the "Sleigh Ride" leaves people at Bloomingdale in a wonderfully pleasant frame of mind.

PERSONAL.—Mr. BOURCICAULT has recovered from his recent severe indisposition, and is now in Boston. Mr. PERRING, the English tenor, has been added to the choir of Calvary Church, (the Rev. Dr. HAWKS'.

Matters in Iowa—Weather—Land warrants, &c.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa,
Monday, March 22, 1856.

After a mild and open Winter, the Spring has fairly set in, and under its bright sunshine the buds and grass begin to exhibit signs of returning life. The ice in the Missouri River, as far up as Fort Randall and hence to the mouth, has all disappeared, and navigation is resumed. The first steamer of the season, the Platte Valley, reached our wharf Saturday afternoon, and met with a most cheering reception. Yesterday she turned her bow, and steamed it down stream with a goodly list of passengers. The honor of the first trip this season belongs to the Platte Valley, and it is one for which the steamers of the Missouri have earnestly contended.

Persons heretofore visiting this region early in the season have felt bored with high bills, but this season we are better prepared with all kinds of provisions, which command less than half the prices of former Springs.

The Land-Office here has been open for private entry during the past four weeks with decided activity. Over 330,000 acres have been entered with warrants and cash, and there yet remains over 600,000 in the District subject to entry. This comprises the land outside of the railroad grants. In June the even numbered sections of land inside the six mile limit along the lines of the railroads will be offered at public sale, but the minimum will be $2 50 per acre cash. All the lands outside of the limits, however, are subject to location, with land warrants, which, at the present low prices, makes the investment a paying one, and enables actual settlers to procure homes at low prices.

Land warrants are scarce, but owing to the still greater scarcity of money, are dull of sale even at prices ruling in your market.

Our Relations with China.

SALEM, Friday, March 26, 1858.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I have read your editorials on China with much pleasure and satisfaction, and having left Canton (after a residence of four years), since the foreign residents were obliged to leave there, I can testify to the truth of, and indorse your articles, as well as the letter from Boston of March 17. And as an American, I beg to offer you my warmest thanks for the manner in which you have laid the subject before the public; for I had, in common with all Americans conversant on Chinese matters, come to the conclusion that our country were so much absorbed in political matters at home, that they could spare no time to protect its interest and honor abroad. Our flag has been disgraced in a manner before unknown, our property destroyed, our lives sacrificed, and treaty obligations openly trampled under foot, not simply by the Chinese people, but by and with the authority of the Government, while our Government looks quietly on to see what other nations are doing, and the English and French openly try to take advantage of their labors.

As you have been the pioneer of our rights in this matter, I trust you will continue in the field until the China correspondence, which is now in Washington, is called for and published, when you will see that my statement has not been exaggerated, and then our patriotic press throughout the country will glow with indignation at the neglect and inattention of a matter of such vital importance to this country. C.

An Earnest Appeal to all Christians.

I would respectfully ask all those interested in the great religious movement now spreading itself throughout the length and breadth of our favored land, to take some decided and well-concerted steps to carry this work more into the midst of the lower classes, and with this object in view to organize a Committee in every Church throughout this City and Brooklyn, whose business it shall be to raise the necessary funds to hire suitable rooms in the lowest parts of the City, where prayer meetings may be held daily, and the poor and lame and spiritually blind entreated to come in and participate. Many of these poor unfortunate people, perhaps, were never inside of a church in all their lives. Their poverty and their rags make them ashamed to go out of their own neighborhood. Here is a noble work, and here is just the class that our Saviour himself labored among, sympathized with, and loved.

Let the experiment be tried first in the Five Points and an effort be made there, which can be extended to other portions of the City whose neglected inhabitants stand in need of all the prayers, sympathy and aid Christians can give to lift them from the paths of degradation and sin. Let those who have felt that the entrance of God's Word giveth light and understanding, and who have tasted and found the Lord is gracious interest themselves in this movement and make it a great, wide-spread, and a successful one. And thus become co-workers with that Divine and Heavenly influence which is being poured out upon us without stint and without measure. It becomes a solemn duty incumbent upon those who have a living hope within their own hearts, to labor to impart it to others, and more particularly to those whose unfortunate condition in life shuts them out from the thousand advantages that the better class enjoy. Let, then, the earnest young men, the benevolent men and all Christian men remember the poorest of the poor, the lowest of the low. The work is not discouraging, for human hands and human intelligence and human efforts will not be left alone to accomplish it. Prayer-meetings should become general in every Ward and in every street, and be no longer confined to the Churches. Neither they nor large assemblies are adapted to the condition of the poorer class.

There are many among the remarkable instances of conversion whose influence upon this portion of our community would be attended with great results. The harvest is great, and the occasion should be availed of to reach vast numbers that have never yet been reached. The day of salvation may have come for the million. Let every Church then organize its Committee to select rooms and hold prayer meetings for the poor in their own neighborhoods and in the midst of their own homes. Go out in the highways, by-ways, and hedges and ditches, and entreat them to come in to hear of Him whose yoke is easy and whose burden is light; whose mission was a mission of love; who taught us that God is love, and enjoined us to love one another. The Women's Infirmary.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Will you allow me to correct an error in the Hon. JAMES T. BRADY's lecture of Thursday evening, in which, in referring to the capacity of woman for the medical profession, he stated that "the last report of the New-York Infirmary contained mention of the labors of two female physicians whose efforts were equal in success to those of the most enlightened men in 'the profession?" Justice to all parties demands the statement that the institution in question is under the charge of three physicians—Drs. ELIZABETH and EMILY BLACKWELL and Dr. MARIE E. ZAKRZEWSKA—the two first bearing the same name, are often mistaken for one. X.

The Broadway Pavement.

NEW-YORK, Thursday, April 1, 1858.

To the Editor of the New-York Times.

SIR: Would not an application of Asphaltum or Coal Tar to Broadway, to be afterwards covered with coarse gravel, obviate the present trouble occasioned by the slipping of omnibus horses? This course is adopted in Paris with great success. It is an experiment which would do no harm, and cost little.

About Book-keepers Again.

To the Editor of the New-York Times.

I beg permission to add a few words to the "Book-keeper's" list of grievances in your issue of 29th instant. I am a practical book-keeper, and have occupied my present position for about four years, at a salary of $800 per annum. I have no expensive habits or tastes to gratify, dress cheaply, and am at the end of each year free from debt, my last month's board paid and nothing over. Now I probably yearn for the $1,500 that "Book-keeper's Wife" affects to despise, for I, too, would like a home, a wife—something to live for—but eight hundred dollars, and even that amount uncertain, cannot furnish it. Large amounts of money pass through my hands, from which I could easily double my salary, if I felt, like the "Wife," "that somebody must suffer." The laborer is worthy of his hire, and judgment shall at the proper time be meted out to those who "Grind the face of the poor."

Book-keepers are the most abused, poorly paid, and at the same time most indispensable men connected with the business world. I venture to say that comparatively few employers understand the science of book-keeping, and at the same time are ashamed to admit as much. Hence the fault-finding, the distrust, and the thousand and one minor troubles which render the book-keeper's life a thankless and a wasted one. Again, many employers consider him a direct expense—his stinted salary an outlay from which no profit is derived—while a salesman who can command a portion of trade is petted and well paid. Our future merchants are not to be found among book-keepers. Salesmen with half the quantity of brains required in a book-keeper, become merchants, while the book-keeper wears out his life, working six days that he may find food and raiment for the seven.

Yet all this does not give him the right to make anybody suffer, and when he does increase his salary by direct or indirect dishonesty, his ill-gotten gains will benefit him but little.

I ask "Book-keeper's Wife" to reflect, and instead of repining at the smallness of her husband's salary, be thankful that he now receives nearly or quite as much again as the majority, married or single, in the profession. A BOOK-KEEPER.

Living on Small Salaries.

NEW-YORK, Wednesday, March 31, 1858.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The articles recently written for your paper by persons employed as book-keepers, have interested me so much as to induce me to give those interested in the matter the result of an examination, made last evening, of my expense book.

I am a book-keeper on a salary of $1,500. My family consists of myself, wife, her mother, one child and one servant—five persons:

House rent per annum		$450
Table expenses and servant's wages per month $53		636
My own dinners in New-York, per annum		78
Ferriage (from Brooklyn) per annum		12
Life Insurance per annum		69
Coal and other Fuel per annum		52
Total		$1,297
Amount of Salary	$1,500
Household expenses	1,297
Leaving a balance of	$203

To dress the family and pay Doctors' bills, which for two years, past were $50 per annum.

Now neither my own or my wife's tastes are extravagant—but from education and association they are refined; and to how limited a scale their gratification is confined your readers can see. I wish that the book keeper who manages to live so well upon $700 per annum would give the public, as I have done above, an abstract of his family expense book.

From the agitation of the matter one good may arise. Our employers, who are spending from $5,000 to $10,000 per annum, may be led to feel that those who pull "the stroke-oar in the boat" are not getting sufficiently paid. Yours

CONFIDENTIAL CLERK.

Discrepancies Between Life Insurance Policies and Prospectuses—Important Decision.

There has recently been a question of some interest and importance decided at the General Term of the Supreme Court. The case of John C. Ruse vs. The Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company, was this: The plaintiff effected an insurance on the life of a Mr. Bugbee, in the defendant's office, for $2,000. By the policy the annual premium was to be paid on the 10th of April, and it was specifically stated that in case the premium was not paid on that day the defendants would not be liable in case of loss. The plaintiff at the time of effecting the insurance, received from the Company a prospectus, stating that "a party neglecting to settle his annual premium within thirty days after it is due, &c., forfeits the interest he has in the policy." Under this statement the plaintiff supposed that he had thirty days' grace. On the second year he neglected to pay the premium on the 10th of May, but on the 13th tendered it to the Company, who, as Mr. Bugbee was then in very poor health, refused to receive it. Soon after Mr. Bugbee died, and the plaintiff sued to recover the amount of the policy. The defence set up is, that the premium was not paid within the time provided by the policy. The matter was finally taken to the General Term, and Judge SUTHERLAND rendered the opinion of the Court. They held that by the defendants' acts and declarations in their prospectus, (allowing thirty day's grace) they were estopped from setting up and insisting upon such default on the part of the plaintiff. The prospectus must be looked upon as a waiver of the forfeiture, for if they induced the plaintiff to delay the payment on the day specified, by their representations, they certainly should not be allowed to take any advantage therefrom. The Court therefore affirmed the judgment of the Court below, which was of the same nature.

The Indians Leagued with the Mormons against the United States.

From the Missouri Republican.

FORT GIBSON, CHEROKEE NATION,
Monday, March 15.

Sir: As all information relative to the movements of the "saints" is at present interesting to the public, I send you the following, which is reliable.

A party of Cherokees, six in number, that left the nation in November last on a trading expedition to the plains, returned last week, and report that twenty-three days' travel south from the Salt Plains they came on a large number of Camanche, Kiowah, Waco, and Witcheta Indians assembled in council, who received them very friendly and traded with them freely for the goods they brought out. The council had under consideration the best method of resisting the United States, and informed the Cherokees that they had just been visited by a party of "Mormons and Mexicans," from whom they had received a large quantity of presents, and had made a treaty with them for their mutual protection against the encroachments of the Gentiles. The Mormons have impressed upon those tribes the necessity of uniting with them and taking a decided stand against the United States, if they wish to retain their hunting grounds, stating that as soon as the whites are in possession of Utah, they will then spread all over the plains, and drive the Indians from their present homes. No doubt the hostility of those tribes will be principally directed against this frontier wherever they can find it most exposed.

The Cherokees who made this trip brought in with them about thirty horses and mules, are very reliable men, and have engaged to meet those tribes again this year at a certain point on the plains agreed upon between them, for the purpose of trade.

Telegraphic Combination.

WASHINGTON, Friday, April 2, 1850.

To the Editor of the Union:

It is widely circulated in the telegraphic news from Washington that on the 11th ult., Senator BIGLER presented "the memorial of AMOS KENDALL and others, interested in the Morse telegraph lines, asking protection against competing telegraph lines."

The memorial asks for no such ridiculous thing. But it shows a combination of parties in the United States with parties out of the United States whose aim is to destroy all competition in telegraphing, as well in the United States as across the ocean, and it asks Congress to so regulate the foreign telegraphic intercourse of the country as to promote and preserve competition in the business. The object of the memorial is, therefore, substantially the reverse of what it is represented to be.

By publishing this communication you will oblige

AMOS KENDALL.

Destructive Conflagrations.

The printing establishment of H. O. HOUGHTON & Co. at Cambridge, Mass., was burned on Saturday. The premises were owned by LITTLE, BROWN & Co., Boston publishers, who occupied them for the storage of books in sheets, and stereotype plates. The contents of the building were valued at $100,000. The damage by water was greater than that caused by the fire. Most of the stock of LITTLE, BROWN & Co. destroyed, consisted of law books. Their loss is $80,000. Insurance, $75,000, here and in England. The Market Insurance Company, of New-York, had a policy of $5,000.

A very destructive fire occurred at Burlington, Vt., on Friday. It broke out in the Pioneer's Mechanic Shop, which was destroyed. The total loss is estimated at $120,000. The principal losers are, H. P. Hickok, building and machinery, $60,000; C. Kilburn & Co., chair manufactory, $40,000; Kendall, Wright & Co., doors and sashes, $5,000; E. W. Chase, doors and sashes, $4,000; Wing & Smith, last makers, $4,000; L. Barnes, lumber, $800; Messrs. Gates, furniture, recently burnt out in Brattleboro, $1,000; Fred. Smith, grist mills, $1,000; Hamilton & Sears, foundry, $3,000. Kilburn & Co. were insured for $16,000, but none of the others were insured. About one hundred and fifty hands are thrown out of employment.

GEN. WEBB AND THE REGULAR ARMY.—We find in the Courier and Enquirer the following explanation of a paragraph which we copied on Thursday from the Richmond South:

"Now, the simple facts of this case, that General WEBB has a son who graduated very creditably at West Point in 1855, and although only twenty years of age, several of the Professors applied to the War Department to have him assigned to duty at the Academy as an Assistant Professor. General DAVIS, the then Secretary at War, refused, and quoted against his application the obsolete regulation, that graduates must serve two years with the regiment before being assigned to extra duty. A good regulation. At the expiration of the two years, however, four of the Professors at West Point again sent in the name of Lieut. WEBB as a proper person for Assistant-Professor. Secretary FLOYD demurred, on the ground that he had not served three years with his regiment. Against this decision, Gen. WEBB protested, as unjust and seemingly an attempt to visit the sins of the father upon the child; and demonstrated, that it was not tenable ground, inasmuch as there were officers on extra duty at West Point who had graduated after Lieut. Webb. The Secretary, upon investigation, discovered that such was the fact; and, therefore, in October last, corrected his error and ordered Lieut. WEBB to West Point as Assistant-Professor of Mathematics. In December, six weeks after the order had been issued, Gen. WEBB called at the War Department, was introduced to the Secretary, and thanked him for having taken the trouble to investigate so trifling an affair, and then promptly doing justice in the premises! Up to that period, Gen. WEBB and the Secretary had never met. Lieut. WEBB has never been ordered to Utah nor is there any probability that the company to which he is attached will be ordered to that Territory."

Judge Thompson's Libel Suit.

The libel suit of Judge Thompson vs. Mr. William A. Hardenbrook was again resumed on Saturday, before Recorder BARNARD.

Augustus Maverick, examined by Mr. Townshend—I am an Assistant Editor of the NEW-YORK TIMES; the defendant, Mr. Hardenbrook, called on me at the TIMES Office about ten days or two weeks ago; he stated that he wanted a reporter sent over to the Board of Supervisors that afternoon; that Judge Thompson was to be impeached; I asked him what under the sun they were going to impeach the Judge for, and I remarked that he was a very clever fellow; he said that the Judge had refused to try a case for a poor woman, and he was going to present a petition at two or three o'clock that afternoon for the impeachment of the Judge on that ground; I told him I would make a memorandum of the case, and hand it to our City Editor, who had charge of the Reporters, and undoubtedly he would send one over; Mr. Hardenbrook added that he would send in a copy of the petition for the impeachment, or we might send for it to his office, and gave me his address as William A. Hardenbrook, No 5 Beekman street; he added immediately afterwards, that perhaps he had better bring it in himself, or that he would either bring it in or send it to that afternoon; the memorandum I made I laid immediately on the desk of our City Editor; Mr. Hardenbrook was to send the copy to our Editorial rooms; that was the last I had to do with the case; Mr Hardenbrook desired the publication of the petition; that was his object for sending it in.

Cross examined by Mr. Jordan—There is only one Editor of the DAILY TIMES, and he has several assistants; my department is that of domestic news; the law department comes under the head of the City department; the law department is entirely distinct from the domestic news department; Mr. Hardenbrook told me that he was going to move for the impeachment of Judge Thompson himself; his words were: "I am going to move for the impeachment of Judge Thompson;" he said it was in behalf of this "poor woman," as he called her; he did not enter into any description of the manner in which Judge Thompson conducted himself; I never saw any manuscript that Mr. Hardenbrook brought to the office; I have no knowledge that he brought or sent one; I do not remember whether I said anything about his letting me have a copy of the petition; there was some general conversation about it, but the proposition to send it in came from him before I said anything about it.

To Mr. Townshend—I never saw Judge Thompson till I saw him in the Recorder's office a few days ago; I only concluded that he was a "clever fellow" by general reputation.

To Mr. Jordan—I have become slightly acquainted with the Judge since, but cannot be supposed to have become very intimate with him in three days.

Anthony R. Dyett examined by Mr. Townshend—I am attorney and counselor-at-law; I was counsel in the Marine Court in the case of Fisher vs. Gardner; I was counsel for the plaintiff; the case was tried on the 6th March last, before Judge Thompson and a Jury; I was present conducting the trial; I saw Mr. Hardenbrook in Court that day; I had some conversation with him; I heard some conversation take place between Mr. Hardenbrook and Judge Thompson that day; while I was waiting for the Jury to come in, in my case, this conversation took place; the first thing that attracted my attention was Mr. Hardenbrook's remonstrating against the adjournment of a case, and pressing that it should proceed then; Judge Thompson refused to go on with the trial at that time; I have an impression that Mr. Hardenbrook said his client was going away, or had to go away; I may be in error about that, but that is my impression; Judge Thompson, I think, said he could not take up the trial till some day he named, some distance ahead; Mr. Hardenbrook still remonstrated and said, looking around him, he hoped gentlemen there would take notice what took place; Mr. Hardenbrook seemed very angry, and turned around to me and said, as near as I can recollect the words, "Did you ever see anything like that? D—n him, I'll impeach him, if I can." I smiled and said to him I thought it doubtful whether it was such a matter as he could be impeached for; he then said that if Mr. Jordan should say he thought he could be impeached, he would try it; of course I cannot give every word that passed between us; but that is the substance, and the very words as far as I can recall them; I remember that I said to Mr. Hardenbrook that if the adjournment was unauthorized the case was out of Court; he turned round and answered, "Why, I am for the plaintiff, and want to get a judgment;" I replied that altered the case; I think he then asked me what was the process to impeach a Judge of the Marine Court, and I told him that I thought the Board of Supervisors had jurisdiction in the matter; about that time the Jury came in, and I thought no more of it; I do not think I heard the title of Mr. Hardenbrook's case; I cannot recall the date to which it was set down; I saw a lady there, but she had her veil down, and I cannot identify her; my conversation with Mr. Hardenbrook was rather sotto voce; I think the lady was about ten or fifteen feet from us; I am confident she could not have heard what we said.

Cross-examined by Mr. Jordan—My cause was committed to the jury, as near as I can recollect, about half-past one o'clock; this case of Bellinger vs. Davis was next taken up, and a witness was examined; I suppose the examination of that witness took ten or fifteen minutes; after it was closed I did not hear any one apply to put off the cause; I heard no one move to bring on any other cause; the Court adjourned immediately the verdict in my case was received; I think I must have noticed everything that took place with respect to the Bellinger and Davis case, as my attention was attracted to it; there was no cause called after my jury came in; as near as I can recollect Judge Thompson said, "I cannot go on with the trial of this case until after the 15th;" I think then Mr. Hardenbrook said "his client was going away, and it was very hard for her;" Judge Thompson said he could not help it—that there were other cases which must be tried before that, and he could not take it up before; I think Mr. Hardenbrook said he thought it unfair to examine a witness on the other side, and not go on with the case until it was ended; I do not recollect that Mr. Hardenbrook said that that cause had already been adjourned fifteen times, and that his client and witnesses had been there every time; I remember his saying very vehemently that it was too bad; and urging, demanding that it should go on; I remember Judge Thompson saying that he would not go on with it; they both appeared to be excited, I do not recollect hearing Mr. Hardenbrook state how many witnesses he had in Court ready to give evidence; I was in Court when the calendar was called that morning, but do not recollect if the plaintiff and defendant in the Bellinger case both answered ready; I recollect hearing Mr. Hardenbrook saying that he had been waiting all day, and insisted upon going on; I cannot recollect what reply Judge Thompson made to that particular observation, but the substance was a refusal to go on; I do not recollect, when Mr. Hardenbrook was remonstrating, hearing Judge Thompson remarking that it was his own fault, and that he might have obviated it by admitting the signature; my impression is that Judge Thompson said, "I have a right, too, to put this cause off, and I will exercise it;" I think Hardenbrook replied, "No, Sir, you have the power, but not the right;" I do not recollect Judge Thompson saying "Yes, and I have the power to do something else too;" I remember Mr. Hardenbrook saying "I am here to protect the rights of my client;" I think that was the language he used, as near as I can recollect; I cannot say what reply the Judge made; I recollect generally that he refused to go on with the case; it was immediately after the adjournment of his case in the Court-room, by the counsel's table, that Hardenbrook said he would impeach him if he could; he said it an under tone; all this conversation took place while the Jury were out.

The testimony of this witness being concluded, the case was adjourned till Wednesday, at 3 P. M.

During this examination an unseemly altercation, one of a series, took place between Mr. Ambrose L. Jordan and Judge Thompson. The Judge, having endured Mr. Jordan's irony, as composedly as a rather excitable individual could be expected to, made an angry retort, which gave rise to a scene derogatory to both parties, and which, but for the firmness of the Recorder, might have had a more serious termination. As it was, Judge Thompson expressly intimated to Mr. Jordan that his age alone was his protection. Mr. Jordan indignantly refused to avail himself of such a shield, and said he was prepared to defend his conduct in his own person, without reference to his years. Judge Thompson also took occasion to complain of what he termed the "garbled reports" of the previous examination published in some of the newspapers, particularly instancing the Express, which had maliciously caricatured the whole of the previous proceedings. Recorder BARNARD observed that in the report alluded to, he was made, in general terms, to call the Marine Court a nuisance, whereas he had said no such thing. Judge Thompson described the whole report as being nearly an entire invention of the reporter. Mr. Jordan wished the reporter was present to defend himself, and deprecated the attack made upon him. The Recorder interposed his authority, silencing the excited disputants, and expressing his determination to allow no more such scenes in his Court.

CHICAGO AND LIVERPOOL.—Two or three year since an attempt was made to establish direct ship communication between Chicago and Liverpool, via the St. Lawrence. The Chicago Tribune says that it "has been tried, with unfavorable results;" and that its eventual success, which must depend upon the construction of the Ontario, Simcoe, and Huron Ship Canal, ought not to be expected within the next quarter of half century.

☞ It is rumored from Philadelphia, says Dr. REESE's Medical Gazette, that the authorities of the Blockley Hospital have appointed Dr. JAMES McCLINTOCK, their resident physician, a delegate to represent that Institution at the next annual meeting of the American Medical Association, in the City of Washington, D. C., which is to be held next month.

Personal.

The Detroit papers have a story of the career of a young girl, which rivals the narrative of the young Irish woman from Brooklyn. A gentleman arrived in Detroit last week, in search of a young woman who absconded from Cleveland nearly a year since, and from whom nothing was heard until a former acquaintance met her in Detroit. Her family are wealthy and respectable, residing in Cleveland. It appears that the girl was seduced by a Teller in a Cleveland Bank; that he forsook her, and she, becoming enceinte, fled from home. She went to Cincinnati, where her child was born. The infant dying soon after, she went to Chicago and became an inmate of a disreputable house. Being recognized there by a man from Cleveland, she left for Detroit, where she became the mistress of a young lawyer. This man forsook her, and she again entered a house of ill-fame, where she has remained until her discovery by her friends of her family. She refused to return to Cleveland, stating that she could not bear to meet former associates, and moreover that she was contented with her present condition. All trace of her is now lost, and she is supposed to have again changed her quarters to avoid further entreaty. The names are suppressed out of regard to her family, who are in deep affliction.

Fires.

ALLEGED ATTEMPT AT ARSON IN ELEVENTH-AVENUE.—The alarm of fire at a few minutes after noon yesterday, was caused by the burning of some shavings in the basement of the dwelling-house at the southwest corner of Eleventh avenue and Thirtieth-street, occupied by LAWRENCE GARVING. The fire was extinguished before any material damage was done. It was alleged by the wife of GARVING that her husband scattered the shavings about the floor, and purposely set them on fire. Some of the neighbors said they had frequently heard GARVING say he would "fire the place on purpose to burn the old lady out." On the strength of these statements, GARVING was arrested and taken before Justice QUACKENBUSH, who locked him up to await the result of the Fire Marshal's investigation.

IN CANAL-STREET.—At 8 o'clock yesterday morning a fire broke out in the lager-bier saloon of CHAS. EBERHART, No. 281 Canal-street. The servant girl who was in charge of the place left a candle burning near her bed. The bed clothes caught fire, and the girl was awakened in time to escape without injury. The damage was about $300. No insurance.

FALSE ALARMS.—The alarm of fire for the Fifth District, at 2 P. M., yesterday, was caused by a private watchman, who made a fire in the fire-place of one of the new buildings in Nineteenth-street, near First avenue. He says he made a fire in order to warm his feet. At 4¾ P. M., Saturday, there was an alarm of fire for the Third District, caused by a fire-board catching fire in the tenement house No. 12 Gansevoort-street.

ACCIDENTALLY POISONED.—Coroner PERRY held an inquest yesterday on the body of CHARLES FOLEY, an Irishman, 50 years of age, who died from taking arsenic. His wife purchased the poison to kill rats with, and the deceased ate some of it unwittingly. Verdict, "Accidental poisoning."

CHILD DESERTION.—Coroner HILLS held an inquest yesterday on the body of a male colored child, found on Saturday night in the alley way of No. 20 Dover-street. The jury rendered a verdict of "Death from exposure and neglect." No clue was obtained to the parentage of the child.

New-Jersey Items.

Coroner SPEER, of Bergen, on Saturday held an inquest upon the body of a unknown man who was found drowned in the Hackensack River, near the Erie Railroad bridge. Deceased was about 45 years of age, 5 feet 8 inches high, was dressed in light tweed pants, black cloth coat and vest, and a red comforter about the neck. The body was not fully identified, but from some papers on his person, it is suspected to be that of a butcher named PHELEY, residing in Newark.

A small building used by the Messrs. EDGE, in connection with the Fireworks Manufactory, was blown up by an explosion of powder on Saturday afternoon. The report was heard for some distance, and caused a turn-out of the Fire Department, but no damage was done beyond destroying the building.

Month of the violet breath and bloom,
Bright herald after Winter's gloom,
That com'st to say—on eager wing
Now hastens on the blue-eyed Spring.
And ere my steps have passed away,
You'll hear her wood notes through the May!

Month of the changeful smile and frown,
With lids now raised, and now dropped down,
Like some young girl, unused to praise,
Who scarce can meet her lover's gaze,
And now will smile—now burst in tears,
As passion's vow first meets her ears.

Dear are thy skies of shifting hue,
And dear thou art to doctors too,
For beneath thy varying star
Rules reigns and riots fell Catarrh—
Colds on the chest and in the nose
To all who wear improper clothes!

But this foe me has got no fear,
Robed for all seasons of the year
By MESSIEURS SMITH, whose store supplies
Clothes fit for every change of skies;
From them I'll get the April style,
And welcome then thy frown or smile.

FRENCH WHITE ZINC PAINT,
MANUFACTURED BY THE VIEILLE MONTAGUE COMPANY, OF PARIS.

Consumers of Paint throughout the United States are invited to test the advantage of this Paint over that made from Lead—

FIRST—It is a clear and brilliant white, surpassing Lead in color as well as durability.

SECOND—It does not contain poisonous acids which render apartments newly painted with Lead so unwholesome, causing painters' colic, &c., &c.

THIRD—It will not change color by exposure to bad air or gases, so that it lasts longer than Lead.

FOURTH—Although its first cost is rather greater than that of Lead, it will prove more economical in the end.

This Zinc can be used for old or new work wherever a durable pure white paint is wanted.

It should not be adulterated with American Zinc, as it renders it thin and injures the color.

Parties who desire to use this beautiful Paint may obtain information where it can be procured pure and unadulterated by applying to the Agents of the Company,

L. W. LEEDS'
HOT-WATER FURNACE.

The first entirely successful and thoroughly practical application of the elegant, healthful and economical system of heating through the medium of hot water.

WE HAVE THOROUGHLY TESTED THESE HEATERS in various situations, and find them entirely efficient in the coldest weather. They are very durable, have few water joints, DO NOT LEAK, NEED NO REPAIRS, ARE EASILY MANAGED, DO NOT SHRINK OR INJURE THE FURNITURE AND WOOD-WORK OF THE BUILDING, AND CAN NEVER SET THEM ON FIRE, and possess many advantages over long circuitous coils of steam-pipes or radiators.

They may be seen in operation at our warerooms. ESTIMATES AND PLANS for warming and ventilating, either by hot water, steam or warm air, made out at short notice. GEO. L. CANNON, No. 406 Broadway.

BANK NOTICES.

BOWERY SAVINGS BANK,
NEW-YORK, March 30, 1858.

NOTICE.—THE DEPOSITORS ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that, on a revision of the By-Laws of this Institution, the 8th article thereof has been amended by the Board of Trustees, the same now forming the 5th section of article 6, and being as follows, viz.:

ARTICLE VI—Section 5.—Drafts may be made, personally, or by the order, in writing, of the Depositor, (if the Bank have the signature of the party on their signature book,) or by letters of attorney duly authenticated; but no person shall have the right to demand any part of his principal or interest without producing the original book, that the payments may be entered therein; nor shall any person have such right without previous notice to the Bank of his intention to make such demand, of thirty days for any amount not exceeding three hundred dollars, and of sixty days for any amount exceeding that sum. All deposits received by the Secretary shall be in money taken in deposit by the incorporated Banks of the City of New-York, at par: and all payments shall be made in the same manner.

The effect of this amendment is to allow Depositors to draw their moneys on any business day upon notice of thirty days, if the sum drawn is less than $300, and of sixty days if over that amount, instead of restricting them to the third Monday of each month and one week's previous notice.

In practice, Depositors have been permitted to draw at any time without notice. It is not intended, in ordinary times, to deviate from this practice. But in the event of a money panic, the limitation to a single day, if enforced, would prevent many persons in actual need from the opportunity of drawing, and the Trustees have, therefore, with a view to the accommodation of all, made the above change, securing, however, beyond contingency, the interests of all the Depositors, by requiring the previous notice of thirty and sixty days, according to the amount intended to be drawn.
By direction of the Trustees,
THOMAS JEREMIAH, President.
G. H. COGGESHALL, Secretary.

CITY INSPECTOR'S DEPARTMENT,
New-York, April 3, 1858.

BURIAL OF ALDERMAN GREGORY.—Mr. JOHN GREGORY, Alderman of the Ninth District, died on Friday last, of abcess in the stomach, and was buried in Greenwood Cemetery, on Saturday. During the morning of Saturday a special meeting of the Board of Alderman was called, and the following message was received from the Mayor:

MAYOR'S OFFICE, NEW-YORK, April 3, 1858.

To the Honorable the Common Council:

GENTLEMEN: It becomes my sad duty to announce to your honorable body the mournful intelligence of the decease of JOHN GREGORY, Alderman of the Ninth Aldermanic District, who expired at his late residence in this City yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Alderman GREGORY, during the brief period he occupied a seat in the Common Council, exhibited qualities as a legislator which promised to make him one of the most useful members thereof, while his kind and generous nature, and his honesty and integrity of character, endeared him to all who knew him. His funeral will take place from St. Peter's Church, Twentieth-street, near Ninth-avenue, in this City, this afternoon, at 1 o'clock. Your honorable body will no doubt make such arrangements therefor, and adopt such measures as will testify the respect due to his memory, as well as manifest your sympathy with the family of the deceased.

DANIEL F. TIEMANN.

After the reading of the above, Alderman OWENS presented the following preamble and resolutions:

Whereas, JOHN GREGORY, a late member of this Board from the Ninth Aldermanic District, has been stricken down by death in the prime of life, surrounded by all the endearing friends and associations which render life desirable; and

Whereas, it now becomes the pleasing, yet melancholy duty of those who were associated with him in this Board, to bear testimony to his gentlemanly and urbane deportment as a member of this body, and to his stern integrity as a citizen; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this Board, having received the sad intelligence of the demise of our respected associate and friend, do deeply sympathise with the family and relatives of the deceased, and we hereby tender them our sincere condolence in this their hour of affliction.

Resolved, That in the death of JOHN GREGORY, Alderman of the Ninth District, the Board has been deprived of the services of a useful, conscientious and influential member, just when entering upon the discharge of the public duties entrusted to his care by his immediate constituents; society of an honest, industrious, persevering and high-minded citizen, and that in respect to his memory this Board will attend his funeral in a body.

Resolved, That the seat in this Board of the deceased member be draped in mourning for a period of sixty days; that the members wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days, and that his Honor the Mayor, the members of the Board of Councilmen and the members of the Board of Supervisors be respectfully invited to coöperate with the Board in paying the last tribute of respect to the memory of the deceased.

Resolved, That the Clerk of this Board be directed to cause a copy of these resolutions to be suitably engrossed and presented to the family of the deceased.

Unanimously adopted.

A Committee from the Councilmen appeared, consisting of Messrs. RUSS, BRADY and DUNN, to announce that that Board had been convened in consequence of the death of Alderman GREGORY, and that they had concluded to coöperate with the Board of Aldermen in attending the funeral ceremonies; whereupon, the President appointed Aldermen OWENS, WILMOT and MCSPEDON, a Committee to confer with the Committee of the Councilmen to make arrangements for the funeral. The Board then adjourned to attend the funeral.

Alderman GREGORY was a plumber, doing business in Eighth-avenue, and was well known in that vicinity. He was 46 years of age at the time of his death. The services were performed in St. Peter's Church, Twentieth-street; and the remains were interred in Greenwood Cemetery.

Police Intelligence.

SHOOTING IN A DANCE-HOUSE.—On Saturday evening, James McCarty, a boy 15 years of age, was shot with a pistol, by a youth named Levy Roscius, in a dance-house in the basement of No. 19 North William-street. Roscius was abusing a little boy who was selling apples, when McCarty reprimanded him and called him a coward. Immediately Roscius drew a pistol and shot McCarty and then fled. The wounded lad was taken to the City Hospital and the ball extracted. He is pronounced out of danger. Roscius was soon afterwards arrested by private watchman Felleman, at his residence, No. 36 Lispenard-street. He was locked up by Justice Osborn to await the result of McCarty's injuries.

ROWDIES AT WORK.—At a late hour on Saturday night, five men went into the low groggery No. 9 Oliver-street, and demanded drinks, which the female bar-tender refused to give them. They thereupon dragged the woman from behind the bar and helped themselves to liquor. Finishing their drinks, they assaulted George Delahunt, who was in the bar-room, and knocked him down, and robbed him of a gold ring and $3 91 in money. Delahunt afterwards notified the Fourth Ward Police, and they arrested two of the rowdies, who gave their names as James Williams and Michael Sullivan. The prisoners were committed to the Tombs.

STABBING.—Peter Riley and Henry Gordon, employed in the publishing house of John F. Trow, No. 377 Broadway, got into an altercation on Saturday night, just after finishing their day's work, and Riley drew a knife and stabbed Gordon in the face and breast. The wounds are severe, but not dangerous. Riley ran away after the occurrence, and the Police have not yet been able to find him.

DESCENT ON A DISORDERLY HOUSE.—On Saturday night the Fifth Ward Police made a descent upon the house kept by Henry Knifs at No. 327 Greenwich-street. They arrested the proprietor, some other men, and six women, whom they found there. The whole party was yesterday taken before Justice Osborn at the Tombs, and Knifs held to bail in $500. The others were dismissed.

ALLEGED FALSE PRETENCES.—Mr. DeWitt Clinton Davis, a merchant of Oswego, was brought to the City Saturday, on a warrant issued by Justice BRENNAN, to answer a charge of obtaining upon false representations $2,000 worth of goods from Messrs. Cameron, Edwards & Co., wholesale silk merchants, No. 355 Broadway. The accused gave bail in $5,000 to answer the charge.

TICKET SWINDLING.—Jacob Snyder, Samuel Barnes, Anson Bronson, Jacob Singley, Joseph Thompson and Wm. Johnson, of Fayette County, Penn., on Friday afternoon paid each $184 50, at the ticket office No. 57 Cedar-street, for passage tickets to California. They afterwards ascertained that they had been swindled, and compromised the matter by accepting $121 each from Selover, the proprietor of the office. They then applied to the Mayor for assistance, but as they had already signed a quit claim, he could do nothing for them.

A COUNTER CHARGE.—About a month ago Aaron Levy was arrested, charged with stealing $500 from Jacob Silverstein, but, on examination, the complaint was dismissed. On Saturday, Jacob Silverstein, Lewis Neustadt, Max Jacobs, Theodore Williams and Gabriel Cracore were arrested, charged with having conspired together and perjured themselves in order to convict Levy of this offence. Justice WELSH committed them for trial.

THROWING VITRIOL.—Louisa Weigor, who keeps a house of assignation at No. 48 Centre-street, was arrested Saturday for throwing vitriol on Martha Gates, one of her boarders. Martha was going to leave the house, and the mistress, it is alleged, threw vitriol upon her in revenge, burning her in a shocking manner. The accused was locked up by Justice WELSH for trial.

SEIZURE OF A VESSEL.—A squad of the River Police on Friday evening assisted the Deputy-Sheriff in seizing the bark Trovadora, which was lying in the stream, and bringing her crew to Pier No. 6, North River. The vessel and the captain remain in the custody of the Sheriff.

TIRED OF LIFE.—An Englishman, about 30 years of age, giving his name as Wm. Stanley, was arrested Saturday evening, at a drug-store where he had purchased some laudanum, stating that he was going to kill himself. The laudanum was taken from him, and he was conveyed to the Second Ward Station-house. He had been in his cell but a short time when it was discovered that he was trying to hang himself with two handkerchiefs tied together. He was watched during the night, and yesterday morning, having promised not to attempt to take his life, again he was discharged. He said he had been disappointed in love, and for this reason attempted to make way with himself. John Halpin, an Irishman, attempted, yesterday afternoon, to put an end to his earthly career by jumping twice off the dock foot of Peck-slip. He was rescued each time, and finally taken home by his friends.

HOW CAN IT BE POSSIBLE?—How does that wonderful curiosity at Barnum's Museum, a full-grown man, contrive to stow himself away, bodily, in a box only 18 inches square? How does he so double himself up at pleasure in presence of the company in so miraculous a manner? The famous and beautiful "Bride of an Evening" is to be repeated with great éclat to-night, and the grand historical play introduced of "Joan of Arc," in magnificent style this afternoon. The man made of India rubber appears after the play, both afternoon and evening. Here are wonders indeed at Barnum's!

Shocking Accident—Two Lives Lost—Inquest.

Mr. MOSES S. ROSS, of No. 208 South First-street, and his son, a lad 15 years old, were almost instantly killed between 8 and 9 o'clock Saturday night last, by driving in a wagon over an embankment on Sixth-street, near Norman-avenue, between Green Point and Williamsburg, on what is known as the meadows on the Meserole estate. The particulars, so far as known, are as follows: Mr. Ross and son left at 12 o'clock Saturday for Flushing, in a one-horse wagon, taking with them samples of a lot of cutlery, which Mr. Ross had for sale. About 9 o'clock that night the horse came home with only a portion of the harness on him. This fact caused his family to believe that either a murder or serious accident had occurred. Mr. MEEKER, son-in-law of Mr. Ross, immediately informed the Police, and a general search was made for the missing parties during the night, but without success. At 7½ o'clock yesterday morning their bodies were discovered at the place spoken of above, by some children who were on the way to Sabbath School. The Seventh Precinct Police were notified, and during the forenoon the bodies were taken in charge by Captain STILLWELL, and placed in the Station-house until Coroner SNELL arrived and took charge of them, for the purpose of holding an inquest. When found, Mr. Ross was lying on his face, with arms extended. His son laid in the same position on his father's back. The wagon was overturned, and the hub of one wheel, with the full weight of the wagon, was resting on the right shoulder-blade of the boy. At the Station-house Dr. JOB DAVIS examined the bodies and said there were no bones broken and the only external injury was on the head of Mr. Ross, just above his right eye, which in itself was hardly sufficient to have caused death. The faces of both indicate that they died from suffocation. They were doubtless stunned by the fall, and the wagon and contents, weighing some 1,200, fell upon them, so that they did not recover their consciousness.

Mr. Ross, at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, stopped at a hardware store, corner of Green Point and Franklin avenues, and asked which was the best route to Williamsburg. He was told to follow the railroad track and go through the toll-gate. He expressed a determination to do so. He probably changed his mind and attempted to go through Fifth-street, but in the dark made a mistake and took what is to be Sixth-street. There are several wagon-tracks across the meadow in this vicinity, and that a man should make the mistake is not to be wondered at. The embankment over which he drove is six feet high and is made by the opening of Norman-avenue. All the money and property known to have been in Mr. Ross' possession were found on his person. He was a well-known and much respected citizen of the Eastern District, and for a long time has kept a cutlery store at No. 208 South First-street. He was about 45 years of age, and leaves a widow and six children.

Last evening Coroner SNELL held an inquest on the bodies, and a verdict of accidental death was rendered. The Jury censure the owner of the property for not keeping the lots fenced.

Brooklyn Items.

A man from Oswego, N. Y., was swindled out of $75 and a silver watch by patent-safe operators, in the Ninth Ward, Saturday last. They escaped with their booty.

At the Central Baptist Church, Bridge-street, Brooklyn, under the pastoral charge of the Rev. Mr. SARLES, eleven persons, six females, five males, one of them aged, were received into the Church on Sabbath morning. One individual, laboring under chronic shaking palsy, was among the number. Mr. SARLES observed to him on his immersion: "In the highest and best of senses the Lord Jesus, my brother, healeth thee of all thy diseases."

During the week ending Saturday last there were 109 deaths; men, 12; women, 20; boys, 40; girls, 37; males, 52; females, 57. There were 19 deaths by consumption, 6 by scarlet fever and 1 by typhoid fever.

WATERBURY's rope-walk, Bushwick, was on fire Saturday morning last, but fortunately it was discovered in time to prevent serious loss.

Judge CULVER has obtained an order requiring Deacon WESTERVELT, of the First Baptist Church, to deposit all of the church books with the County Clerk on or before the 7th April.

The election for Ward officers of Brooklyn takes place to-morrow. It is the first Spring Election under the act of 1857 separating the General Election from the purely local. The opportunity is seized by citizens to express an opinion upon certain nuisances and abuses that the goodly city is struggling to be freed from, and the contest promises to be spirited.

MONDAY, April 5—A. M.

The Foreign Trade at this port the past week shows a material improvement both in the total original entries, as compared with the weekly returns through February and March, and in the amount of goods actually marketed. The general improvement in business begins to be more felt in the Dry Goods line; and as we have the almost certain prospect of an early opening of canal navigation—the navigation of Lake Erie being already free—our merchants begin to take courage in regard to their Spring sales to the Northwest. The South and Southwestern trade is pretty much over for the present. Although very moderate in amount as compared with the previous two years, it has been a sound one; little disposition being manifested to buy extravagantly, on the one hand—or to push goods incautiously upon the country dealer. The entries of Foreign merchandise the past week, including the Dry Goods table in our last paper, amount to $3,718,465, as against $5,046,229 the corresponding week last season. The clearances of Domestic Produce and Miscellaneous Goods amount to $1,344,083, as against $1,795,740 the same week last year. The Export of Specie for the week was $115,790, against $742,000 same week in 1857. The Specie balances in the Sub-Treasury in this City stood on Saturday afternoon $5,548,069, against $6,141,594 at the close of the previous week. The Bank reserve of last week, $30,929,472, being made up on a rising average, before the last California receipts were fully felt, the probability is that the statement this afternoon will show a moderate increase in Specie, and something like a corresponding if not a larger increase in the undrawn Deposits, which, already higher than ever before known in this City, continue to accumulate from nearly every quarter of the country.

As we hope to present in a day or two the official Custom-House returns of trade and specie for the calendar month just closed, and with them our usual monthly summary for nine months of the current Treasury year, we omit this morning the ordinary semi-official comparison by weeks.

The market for Money during the past week manifested the same general ease and moderate rates of interest as through the whole month of March. The employment on mercantile paper and Treasury Bills has moderately increased, while from the Stock Exchange the demand has greatly lessened, although every inducement of easy terms is held out to the Brokers, both at bank and by private lenders. We quote on first-class paper 5@7 ℔ cent. for short dates; 6@9 ℔ cent. for bills having four to eight months to run, the rate outside of bank being regulated by the favor in which the names offered are held in the discount offices. At call, Money is occasionally left with the Brokers below 5 ℔ cent., and, when sought for by the borrower on good collateral, is easily had at 5@6 ℔ cent. The terms for Foreign Exchange have gone up full 1 ℔ cent. since the close of week before last, and some of the leading drawers are holding London at 109 ℔ cent. The range for bank bills is 108½@109; commercial 107½@108½; francs 5.18¾@5.16¼. There is no export demand for Bullion, although, owing to the great ease in Money, bill-drawers are enabled to approach very near the Specie rate. The supply of Gold for April, over and above the present reserve in Bank, will be about $3,500,000 from California, and $2,500,000 to be disbursed from the Sub-Treasury in excess of its current income from the Customs. We also hear of about $500,000 as likely to arrive from Europe on orders sent out the week in March that Exchange touched 107 ℔ cent.

The Clearing-House Association of Banks are now fully established in their new Clearing Rooms, in the Bank of New-York building, corner of Wall and William streets; with much more convenient and commodious accommodations for business than the Manager of the House and his assistants have ever known since its enlargement in October, 1853. And the location is equally desirable to a majority of the Banks in the Association, though not quite so near to many of them as when on Broadway.

The Assorting House for country currency, recently arranged for between the Merchants' Bank, and Bank of the Interior at Albany and a portion of the Country Bankers, will open for business at Albany to-day.

On the same subject, a financial correspondent here writes as follows:

It is currently reported that the Bank of Commerce of this City, by a promise of contribution of capital to the Bank of the Interior in Albany, is endeavoring to force the redemption of the uncurrent money of this State to be made in Albany, as it was previous to the establishment of the Metropolitan Bank. The object of the Bank of Commerce in doing this is not apparent, and it would be well for the mercantile community who procured the establishment of the present system, so favorable to themselves, to know why the Bank of Commerce should aid in imposing the additional tax of ¼ to ⅜ ℔ cent. on them in converting their uncurrent money into City funds, as would be the case if the merchants are forced to return to the old system of selling to the Brokers at such rates as they choose to charge. Let the distinguished President of the Bank of Commerce state his views upon this subject, that the merchants may understand his motives for subjecting them to such a loss.

The market through the week was almost a uniform Bear one, and the average decline established at the close on Saturday afternoon, when the dealings were especially marked by a pressure to sell for further decline, is fully equal to five ℔ cent. And as compared with Saturday fortnight, about ten ℔ cent. on most of the Speculative Shares. The exceptions to the general downward character of the Share dealings were a momentary rise in Hudson to 32¼ ℔ cent., on Wednesday, the Bulls having this advantage in selling a considerable amount of Short contracts made a few days before at 27@28 ℔ cent., and an advance of 2 ℔ cent. in Illinois Central, on the English quotation received by the Persia. The very heavy fall on nearly the whole list since about the 1st March has weakened or indisposed outside speculation so much that the movement on the Exchange assumed last week the character of a severe contest, for the ascendant, between the Bear and Bull jobbers within the Board of Brokers; the superiority of numbers on the side of the former, and the vigor of a regular combination to break down their leading opponents, suspected of being overloaded with certain stocks, determining the result up to Saturday afternoon. In this fight the best or intrinsically strongest Railroad Stock on the list was singled out for what is technically known as the hammering process, and although the amount of certificates at command in the Street is so limited as to make the deliveries frequently inconvenient, New-York Central went from 87¾ to 82 ℔ cent.! This movement, and the heavy decline on Reading, first below 50 ℔ cent. and then to 43, carried down nearly the entire share market, not excepting Delaware and Hudson (which, like Reading, is affected by the condition of the Coal trade) or Galena and Chicago. So that near the close on Saturday, the character and force of dealings of the market seemed completely reversed as compared with the Bull ascendency four weeks ago. Then, nine-tenths of the operators inside the Board, and the Street speculators who assemble in the ante room, were eager buyers, each bidding up stocks against his neighbor, and few or none willing or disposed to check the rise. Now the same parties are found struggling to speculate for the fall, each underselling the last offer, and happy, in their own estimation, in getting out contracts on any terms, while all immediate support to the market appeared to be withdrawn. The financial or political influences favoring the sellers were not so apparent, as the foregone determination to force lower and lower prices, until the opposite party, few in numbers, though known to be strong in means, can be broken down or forced to disgorge what of Central and other Stocks they are supposed to hold. As there are no signs of this yet, while the Street has been making itself largely short of most of the speculative shares, the outside public who take an interest in the fluctuations of the market, or who may be on the look-out for bargains in the dividend-paying stocks, must judge for themselves as to how much further the course of depression is likely to run,—not forgetting that while Money keeps easy and cheap and the country quiet, and general trade tending to improvement, the combinations on the Street, which are simply to make money and not to preserve consistency, may become as powerful for a rise, and under much the same lead, to-morrow, as they are successful in establishing a fall to-day.

The demand for and prices of State Stocks through the week were generally steady. The business is mostly of an investment character, the only adequate supply for speculative dealings being in Missouri sixes. These have been sold heavily, and have found free buyers at 82@82¼ ℔ cent. up to Saturday, when the price declined to 81½ ℔ cent. Virginias have fallen off in price, owing to the partial, though perspective, extension of the debt by the present Legislature, while Tennessees are firmer, because of the refusal of the Legislature of that State to increase her bonds for banking purposes, at the same time reducing the prospective aid heretofore contemplated to railways. In Railway Bonds the business of the week was moderate. The third mortgage of the Erie Company and their unsecured Bonds declined 3@5 ℔ cent. from the previous sales. La Crosse Land Grants declined, at one time, to 30 ℔ cent., but subsequently closed at 31 ℔ cent. The Bonds of the New-York Central were firm. The dealings in Illinois Central Construction Bonds are, of late quite moderate, though at steady prices.

We understand that all unpaid drafts, drawn by the Banking House of SATHER & CHURCH, San Francisco, on their correspondents, are being duly honored on presentation at the respective places on which they are drawn. We are informed that the house in San Francisco will shortly resume.

The Mining Journal of Saturday remarks of the Coal Trade:

The quantity sent by railroad for the week is 19,574 10—by canal 17,917 15—for the week 37,492 05 tons. The railroad is short of last year's shipments to date, 117,204 19 tons, and the canal 16,050 03 tons, making the deficiency so far this year, from Schuylkill County, 133,255 02 tons. The trade opens unusually dull this season—a few cargoes of coal were required at a number of points where they had run out, but it is supposed that these points will be supplied in a few weeks, when the trade will drag again for a month or two, unless business should show a greater improvement than it has done for the last few months. First quality White Ash Coal is offered at $2 ℔ ton here—second quality White Ash, including Gray Ash, ranges from $1 75 to $1 90—Red Ash from $2 10 to $2 25, according to quality and vein. The Ashland operators ask from 10 to 20 cents above White Ash prices this side of the mountain. The following is the state of the trade compared with last year to the present time:

	1857.	1858.	Gain.	Loss.

The Philadelphia Ledger says of the difficulties in the bankrupt Pennsylvania Bank:

"We understand proceedings have been instituted before the Grand Jury of the Court of Quarter Sessions, concerning the management of the late Bank of Pennsylvania. The Grand Jury have found true bills, charging Messrs. THOMAS ALLIBONE, late President, and THOMAS A. NEWHALL, late a director of that institution, with conspiracy concerning the alleged mismanagement of the bank, thereby causing a great loss to stockholders and others. Yesterday morning Mr. NEWHALL came into Court and entered bail in the sum of $10,000, on the charge of conspiracy. Mr. JOHN WELSH entered the required surety. Mr. ALLIBONE, it is said, is at present at his farm in New-Jersey, and will probably meet the charge as soon as made acquainted with the action of the Grand Jury."

The position of this structure is in 4 feet water, on the east side of the narrow channel connecting the Pamplico and Croatan Sounds, and about midway between these two Sounds, and within 150 feet of the low water mark of Jackson's or Caldwell's Island.

The structure is erected on iron piles, is built of wood and is hexagonal in plan. The lantern is above the centre, and the focal plane of the light is 34 feet above the water level. The building is painted white and the lantern red.

The illuminating apparatus is catadioptric of the fourth order of the system of Fresnel, illuminating 270° of the horizon, and will show a fixed light of the natural color.

The light should be visible, in ordinary states of the atmosphere, from the decks of vessels navigating these waters, at a distance of 10 nautical miles.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

Lessee and manager....................E. A. Marshall.
Acting manager, Mr. Griffin; Stage manager, F. C. Wemyss.

First night of the engagement of Mr. and Mrs. WALLER,
Who will appear on MONDAY EVENING, April 5, 1858, in the great Elizabethan tragedy, in five acts, by John Webster, a cotemporary of Shakespeare, entitled
THE DUCHESS OF MALFI.

Marina, Duchess of Malfi....................Mrs. Waller.
Ferdinand, Duke of Calabria and Lord of Tarragan....................Mr. Waller.

NOTICE.
This thrilling and passionate tragedy was originally produced in London in 1612.

It was reconstructed for stage representation by R. H. Horne, author of "Gregory the Seventh," "Cosmo de Medici," "Orion," &c., &c., and produced again in London in 1850,
where it met with
AN UNPARALLELED SUCCESS.
It belongs to the golden period of the English drama,
THE ELIZABETHAN AGE,
when Shakespeare, Jonson, Marlow, Beaumont and Fletcher, Chapman, Decker, Webster, and hosts of other old masters, divided the empire of learning and genius.

Hazlitt says of Webster:
His "White Devil" and his "Duchess of Malfi," upon the whole, come the nearest to Shakespeare of anything we have upon record, both in general conception and individual expression.

Charles Knight thus eulogizes Webster:
He had the power of approaching the terrible energy of his passion, and the profoundness of his pathos, in characters, which he took of the great muster-roll of humanity, and placed in fearful situations.

Charles Lamb tells us:
That to touch a soul to the quick—to lay upon fear as much as it can bear—to wean and weary a life, until it is ready to drop—and then step in with mortal instruments to take its last forfeit "only a Webster can do."

FULL OF STARTLING SITUATIONS, a profound interest in the plot, and gems of poetry are scattered through this play in sparkling profusion.

The Rev. Mr. Dyce,
In his collection of Webster's Works, says: Few drama possess a deeper interest in their progress, or are more affecting in their conclusion, than
THE DUCHESS OF MALFI.
It will be presented to the public of New-York,
With every attention
TO SCENERY, COSTUMES AND EFFECTS, which always mark the production of a new piece at the Broadway Theatre.
To be followed by Selby's capital farce of
THE DANCING BARBER.
Narcissus, the dancing barber....................Mr. Rogers
(So long the pride of the London stage—his first appearance at this Theatre.)
Prompter, J. W. Clifford; Leader of the Orchestra, Mr. Reyer; Treasurer, Mr. P. Warren.
Doors open at 7 o'clock; to commence at 7½.
